EXPERTS MAKE REPORT ON SEWER EXTENSION NEEDS IN NEW CASTLE

Report Of Survey And Study Of City Conditions Is Given To Council

COUNCIL TO STUDY REPORT AT ONCE

Some New Sewers Are Needed At Once; Others Must Be Built In Future

Extensions, additions and enlarging of the sewer systems of New Castle, that will be needed immediately within the course of the next 20 years, to take care of the situation in New Castle, are presented in the report that has been submitted to council by the Fuller and McClintock company which has been studying the local situation for some months.

The survey was made at the direction of the city council to determine upon a consistent plan for taking care of the sewerage needs of the city in the future as a result of the discovery during recent years that the sewer system is inadequate.

The experts present recommendations for immediate extension and enlarging of some parts of the sanitary and storm sewer systems and also give an outline of what should be done in the future. The entire project covering the 20 year period is one of a million dollars or more, while recommendation is made for immediate construction of part of it which would necessitate an outlay of probably $400,000.

Recommendations offered will be given full consideration when council members convene to appropriate 1928 moneys.

After reporting on their survey of conditions they discuss the sanitary sewer system and place an estimated cost of $825,000, for main sewers where relief will be required during the next 20 years. However relief now needed would call for an expenditure of probably $450,000.

School Players Score New Hit In Pollyanna

High School Play Is Well Presented At Auditorium Last Night

NEW PLAYERS PROVE ABILITY IN ROLES

Many Features To Presentation; To Repeat Performance Tonight

It does seem at times as though the clouds were made just to give the sunshine a chance to show itself, and by the same sign it sometimes appears that troubles are allowed to exist only to give such persons as Pollyanna, the Glad Girl an opportunity to project her beams of gladness.

You know Pollyanna of course? The little lady who was always glad, no matter wht happened. She could always find a ray of sunshine in the darkest cloud, in fact for her every cloud was not only silver lined, it was silver plated.

High School Play

Pollyanna and her pals were in the Senior High school auditorium Thursday night as this year's school play and before it was over the audience was like Pollyanna, glad. Glad that they had not missed the opportunity of seeing this very lovely little play presented by youngsters who never fail to please.

Pollyanna is one play in which the author has been thoughtful enough

Further Flood Damage Seen

Swollen Streams In New York State Render Many Homeless

PROPERTY DAMAGE IS REPORTED HEAVY

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—With rain predicted for today, additional damage and hardship was feared in Western New York, where floods caused by swollen streams have made many families homeless, inundated farm lands and crippled transportation.

With freezing weather predicted by the weather bureau, no relief was in sight for residents made temporarily homeless.

One death had been reported today. Ephraim Head was trapped in his burning house at Olean by flood waters and perished in the flames. Neighbors were unable to rescue.

Canal traffic is at a standstill.

Damage in the Genesee Valley, where bridges have been swept away and highways are under water, runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. At Geneva a landslide blocked the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad. Water rushing over the top of the Mt. Morris Dam has flooded the valley below.

See Strategy In Move By Dawes Favoring Lowden

Politicians Do Not Believe Dawes Out Of Running As Candidate

LOWDEN BENEFITS BY ANNOUNCEMENT

Observers Do Not Believe Lowden Can Get Nomination, However

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Republican leaders gathering here for the party love feast that always accompanies a Republican national committee meeting greeted with bland smiles today Charles G. Dawes' announcement that he is not a candidate for the presidency next year.

It isn't that they question the vice president's sincerity, nor do they doubt the warmth of his regard for his old friend, Frank O. Lowden, whom Dawes announced he would support. They just do not consider that the general has removed himself from the Republican picture any more than President Coolidge did when he made his enigmatic statement "I do not choose to run".

See Similarity.

As a matter of fact, an umber of the committeemen pointed out, there is a lot of similarity between the

Vare And Smith Attend Republican Caucus; Moses Elected President Pro Tem

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas was re-elected Republican leader of the senate today at a caucus attended by most of the Republicans of the upper house. Senator James E. Watson of Indiana was re-elected assistant leader.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire was re-elected president pro tem, but action on other offices in the senate, including those of sergeant-at-arms and chaplain, was withheld.

A feature of the Republican caucus today was the attendance of Senatorselect Frank L. Smith of Illinois and William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, around whose rights to take their seats will rage a tremendous battle beginning next Monday.

Vare-Smith Confident.

Undaunted by the seeming certainty that they will not be allowed to take their seats, the Illinois and Pennsylvania senators participated in the caucus just as any other senators-elect. Both appeared confident that they will win their way into the senate, but their confidence was not shared by a majority of the Republicans present.

The Republican regulars, facing an evenly divided upper house and needing every Republican vote to muster a bare paper majority extended an olive branch to their Insurgent brethren, whom they gave scant consid-

Reporter Again Is Witness In Remus Trial

(International News Service)

COURTHOUSE, Cincinnati, O., Dec. 2.—John T. Rogers, St. Louis newspaper reporter, on the stand again today in the Remus murder trial, testified he had been told that the slain Mrs. Imogene Remus and Franklin L. Dodge were found in a room together in a Cleveland hotel and ejected by the management.

George Conners, Remus' confidential adviser, told him that, Rogers said, in the Remus home in Cincinnati in the summer of 1926.

George Remus heard Conners tell it and became furious Rogers related.

SEVERE COLD WEATHER IS GRIPPING MID-WEST

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The icy hand of winter gripped the middle west today as temperatures fell to the lowest level this season.

Cold and exposure claimed one death in Chicago when the body of Harry Gardner, 60, was found dead in an alley-way.

Frigid blasts accompanied brisk winds which swept in from western Canada and sent the thermometer to the 12-above-zero mark. Colder weather with snow was predicted for Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and parts of Wisconsin for tonight.

Sub zero weather descended upon the Minneapolis area.

Boyhood Friend Of George Remus Back On Stand

RELATES MISDOINGS OF SLAIN WOMAN

Believes Remus Temporarily Insane At Times When Talking About His Wife

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COURT HOUSE, CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2.—John S. Berger, wealthy exposition promoter of Los Angeles, resumed the witness stand as the first witness today at the trial of his boyhood friend, George Remus, who shot and killed his wife, Imogene. Berger had related the alleged misdoings of the slain Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, the prohibition enforcement sleuth, in minute detail and without the slightest compunction.

Believed Insane at Times.

He told Remus, he said, that Mrs. Remus informer him she was "madly in love" with Dodge. He told "George" as he calls Remus, that he saw them half disrobed in hotel rooms together and that Dodge and Mrs. Remus were the cause of all his troubles. They not only planned to deport him but hired gangsters to assassinate him. Berger said he informed Remus.

"What opinion did you form of Remus when he ranted and raved when you told him these things," Defense Counsel Charles H. Elston asked the witness this morning.

"Insane at that time," replied Berger.

Cross-Examination.

Cross-examination of Berger was then began by Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, son of former President Taft.

Q—When did you meet Remus in St. Louis after the 18-year interval you referred to?

A—In September, 1925, shortly after he was released from Atlanta penitentiary.

Berger, explaining he next met Remus in Indianapolis started to say it was on the occasion when Remus left the Claypool hotel for a private

Believe Flood Crest Reached

OIL CITY HAS SMALL FLOOD

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—The Allegheny river is believed to have spent its force when it reached a 23-foot stage at the point here at 8 o'clock this morning, according to W. S. Brotzman, weather forecaster.

Although basements in several factory buildings were flooded with a few feet of water and the Baltimore & Ohio water, the damage was slight, it was said.

Brotzman explained that the river will remain stationary for several hours when the crest is reached some time today, but there is no danger that the flood stage of 25 feet will be reached. This, the weather official said, was due to the river falling upstream.

At Franklin after having reached a record high mark of 17.2 feet for December, the flood waters are now receding.

At Oil City the Allegheny reached 17 feet, and Oil creek a stage of more than 21 feet. Many basements were flooded in the Oil City business district.

Bradford streets, which last night were under from four inches to four feet of water, today were free from water.

Temperature Will Take Drop Tonight Says Weather Man

Weather Forecaster Says 18 Degree Weather Due To Hit This Section Tonight

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—Pennsylvania underwent a cold spell the last three days, but it will experience a much colder one beginning tonight, coming out of the west, where today sub-zero weather was reported. Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicting the mercury will drop 18 degrees from today's thermometer reading of 36.

"We will have much colder weather before tonight, and I believe the minimum temperature will be 18 degrees, the same temperature that is prevailing today at Chicago," the weather officials explained. "Even as far south as Columbia, Mo., a cold wave is raging. At that place 19 degrees was recorded."

The coldest spot in the United States today is at Duluth, Minn., where the mercury is down to 18 degrees below zero.

Much suffering is predicted with this latest predicted cold weather, as such a cold wave was not expected to follow the frigid temperature now here, it was said.

Although a high wind is predicted to accompany the low temperature this evening it will not exceed 35 miles an hour, it was said. Rain followed by snow will precede the freezing weather this evening. How much rain or snow will fall could not be learned, but it was believed if it fell in any great quantity it would remain on the ground for some time.

The new winter blast will be general throughout the central states, it was believed and may visit the Atlantic coast a weather official here stated.

No Personal Identification Made Of Dando

Because of the non-appearance of Detective Caponi of Pittsburgh, no positive identification has been made as yet of the man whose murdered body was found near New Bedford on November 27.

The check-up of his fingerprints make it appear that he is Joseph Dando, 27, and Detective Caponi was supposed to have come to New Castle today to make the identification.

Until he comes nothing in the way of further identification in the way according to County Detective William G. Fleming.

Rain Records Of Seven Years Fall For Month

Month of November this year had the heaviest rainfall of any November for seven years with a total precipitation of 5.38 inches according to the co-operative observer of the United Weather Bureau, E. J. Quest, whose station is located at the pump station of the New Castle Water company.

November was also a very warm month compared with other years as the minumum temperature of 22 degrees was the warmest record since 1915 and the maximum of 75 degrees although the same as last year for November was the highest it has been for a great number of years before that.

There were no wholly clear days during the whole month 7 days being reported as partly cloudy and 23 as cloudy. There were 16 days of rain, 7 of snow and 3 with sleet with the rain. The first killing frost of the season was reported on the night of November 12. The total snowfall for the month was one-half inch which was the same as for November, 1926, but far below the snowfall for many years previous.

Reveal At Outset Of Defense That Lilliendahl And Beach Quarreled

(International News Service)

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 2.—Willis Beach, on trial with Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl for the murder of her husband, had a violent quarrel with the slain man nearly a year ago, it was stated in court today in the opening defense statement.

Edison Hedges, Beach's counsel, told the jury that his client called Dr. Lilliendahl a "damn fool", and that the doctor retaliated with the same characterization. Hedges added, however, that the two men later made up their differences and became better friends than ever.

Families Friendly

In the face of state testimony just completed, which tended to show that Beach and Mrs. Lilliendahl had indulged in illicit trysts, Hedges went on to declare that he would show that their relations were "of the finest" and that the two families were quite friendly, even Mrs. Beach.

Any quarrels that the slain doctor and the accused poultry raiser may have had originated solely from their mutual interest in chickens and were only of the kind that two enthusiastic chicken fanciers might be expected to have, the attorney said.

The damaging testimony of Samuel Bark, who declared on the stand that Beach had confessed to him the killing of the doctor, Hedges dismissed with the simple statement that he would show it "means nothing". The letters that the widow and Beach exchanged were only harmless notes, he said. Likewise, testimony that the state offered in the attempt to prove

In the throng that goes to the movie show the people are varied and many, and few there are that I do not like, sometimes I doubt there are any. But there is a lad that I single out, from the rack and press of the crowd, he is the chap who insists upon, reading the titles out loud. He may not think he is boring folks, as he reads what the screen unwraps, and he may not think there are thoughts of crime, in the minds of the other chaps, but as he sits there and reads out loud what the hero said to the lass, he misses by inches the hempen rope, or the use of some friendly gas. Oh the title reader is quite a bore, but he's here and he's here to stay, so the only thing is to let him read, it's thirty-seven today.

School Teacher Fatally Hurt

Maddened By Love Tragedy, Man Places Dynamite In School Stove

(International News Service)

OTTAWA, Ill., Dec. 2.—Maddened by a love tragedy, Hiram Reed, a 24-year-old farmer, placed two sticks of dynamite in the stove of the Pleasant Valley school here today causing a terrific detonation which probably fatally injured Miss Iola Bradford, 24, school teacher, and narrowly missed claiming the lives of two score small children.

Miss Bradford, who police say was about to become a mother, arrived at the school earlier than her usual time, and applied a match to the waste material in the stove, within which was hidden the deadly charge. A blast followed, wrecking the building.

A 9-year-old school girl, about to step into the structure, ran screaming for aid. Farmers pulled Miss Bradford from the debris and rushed her to a hospital.

Reed was captured by a posse and was taken under armed guard to prevent a lynching to the county jail where he confessed the action, authorities said.

Reed, after postponing his marriage to Miss Bradford, upon numerous occasions, finally consented under duress, to marry the girl Sunday, police stated.

Miss Bradford is the daughter of a retired minister of Chillicothe, Ill.

to give somebody beside the lead a chance to play. While Virginia Reeher takes the part of Pollyanna, the lead, and does a real job of it, the rest of the cast have important parts. Virginia Reeher has been a versatile Thespian in her high school days. She has done everything from black face to evening gown, and her delineation of Pollyanna is just another fine piece of work.

And with each play, Miss Clara Hartsuff seems to dig up a new star who will be there to carry on when the Old Guard is gone. This time its Hazel Barrett, an Irish maid by name Nancy, and a review of the past eight years of high school plays fails to reveal a character actress who fills the bill like this young lady. She has a rich Irish brogue that never could be simulated. One must be born with it.

Three of the Old School

Three Apostles of Scandal make their appearance in the play, Mrs. Carmody, Mrs. Greeg and Miss Caroll, played by Julia Gordon, Alice Throop and Helen Weingartner respectively. Their gowns look like what was considered "uptown stuff" back in the gay nineties, and the way they rake up past history is just too bad.

The part of the aunt of Pollyanna, Polly Harrington, is taken by Ethel Brookover, another comparitively new face in the high school casts and while she has a difficult role she gets through it most gracefully.

Norman Lewis had the part of Jimmy Bean, Jr., the orphan boy, and you can't help but feel a bond of sympathy for that rag wrapped around his big toe. Back when you and I were kids, four out of five had it, and the fifth had a stone bruise on his heel.

Elmer Williams and Mac Chambers work together as John Pendleton and Dr. Chilton, two old bachelors who had been spurned in their youth, but through the ministrations of Pollyanna had the sunshine turned on in their souls. Like the part of Polly Harrington, these parts were difficult for youngsters, but you never would have known it to see them act.

Bleecker and His Sideburns

The part of Bleecker, the butler, was taken by Robert Weingartner. Bleecker's sideburns ran almost to his chin and his part ran all through the play. It needs a lad with the brawn of Weingartner to carry the stocky Pollyanna, but he does it with little effort. The part of Jimmy Bean Sr. was taken by Raymond John, and what a picture he was in those white pants.

Now that's the show, well acted, splendidly directed and pleasing in the presentation, but there were other features. The dances, presentd by three groups of high school girls, were most graceful, and the Boys' Glee Club was a real hit. With those wing collars they didn't need to sing a note to get by, but they did anyway, and got encored. The Girls' Glee Club also sang well. And to finish the features there was the Senior High school orchestra. Gets better every year, it seems, with last night standing out as easily its best work of this year. Pollyanna will be presented again tonight with Dorothy Jean Wallace as Pollyanna and James Smith as Jimmy Bean Jr. It's well worth seeing. Following is the list of the glee club members and the dancers:

Boys' Glee Club

Coolidge and Dawes statements. Mr. Coolidge said, "I do not choose to run"; Mr. Dawes said "I am not a candidate"; but neither of them stated that he would refuse a nomination if the convention proffers it.

The practical politicians that make up the national committee feel, however, that the Lowden candidacy has been given a powerful impetus by the vice president's statement. Some of them interpreted it as meaning that Gen. Dawes not only will not enter any primary contests, but will refuse to let his friends put up his name in any state. If that is true, the chances are that Lowden will run a great deal stronger in the spring primaries than he otherwise would have done for it is admitted that the vice president has certain strength that he may be able to deliver.

Deep aid Strategy?

Some of the more cynical politicians who deal in futures professed to see some very deep laid strategy in the vice president's position. They do not question the general's sincerity that he is for Gov. Lowden, for they know of the fast friendship that has existed between the two men for many years. But they doubt Gov. owden's ability to win the nomination even with Dawes' support. What would be more natural, they ask, than for Lowden, after he has had his run, to throw his strength to Dawes? They believe something like that is going to happen in the convention.

Meanwhile, the gathering of the committee here to select a convention city has failed to clear up to any appreciable degree the confusion that still prevails among Republicans generally over Mr. Coolidge's status.

When the president said at the white house last week that he would have "a few remarks" to make to the committee when it calls on him at the white house next week, the impression was general that Mr. Coolidge would take advantage of this occasion to clarify his position.

Ex-Senator Wm. M. Butler, the committee chairman, dispelled this impression today by passing around the word that the president would have nothing to say about his personal political fortunes.

The campaigning for the convention site really got under way today. Although a dozen cities have submitted their claims, the fight has virtually narrowed down to San Francisco and Detroit, with Cleveland a third contestant. The Detroit people are putting up a strong argument that as congress probably will run until June the convention should not go to the far west coast, but stay within striking distance of Washington. They are winning some support by that argument.

The Californians, having a third of the committee already pledged to San Francisco, remain smilingly confident, however.

apartment "because gunmen were trying to kill——"

Taft interrupted saying "Don't volunteer any information, just answer the questions.

Berger went to Indianapolis to be with his friend Remus, who was a witness in the Jack Daniels trial. He couldn't recall the exact date.

A—In St. Louis in September, 1925.

Q—How long did the outburst last?

A—Fifteen or 20 minutes.

Taft reframed the question.

Lies, He Declares.

"Manufactured lies," shouted John S Berger, aggressive witness for George Remus, from the witness stand today when Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, on cross-examination, tried to impeach his testimony by inferring he tried to force the slain Imogene Remus to pay him $25,000 under a threat to tell her husband "what she was doing" if she did not "come through".

Taft lit into Berger in cross-examination and quickly raised Berger's blood pressure. The witness angrily argued with Taft continually.

Q—(By Taft)—Didn't you go to Mrs. Remus' room in St. Louis and demand that she give you $25,000 for Remus? Didn't you tell her you had seen Remus on the streets of Indianapolis, his clothes shabby and worn and his face amaciated from hunger?

A—No, absolutely no.

Q—Didn't you tell Mrs. Remus that if she didn't give you $25,000 you'd tell George what she was doing?"

A—No sir, positiveiy no.

Q—Didn't you tell her if she did not give you the $25,000 there would be men who would beat her up and mutilate her?

A—(Angrily)—That's a manufactured lie, Mr. Taft. No, no no! Positively no!

A—(Shouting)—No!

Q—You didn't try to get $25,000 out of her?

A—No. What I really did was to go see her and offer her several hundred thousand dollars if she would agree upon a settlement of Mr. Remus' holdings.

Four Fatalities In County During "No Accident" Month

During November, which was designated as "no accident" month there were four fatal accidents in Lawrence county, according to the records of Coroner J. P. Caldwell. Two men were killed as the result of accidents in plants at Bessemer. One man was accidentally shot in North Beaver township and one died from injuries received when he was struck by a train in this city.

To raise funds for church improvements, the vicar of St. John's church recently played a hand organ in London streets.

eration a year ago when administration forces were more securely in the saddle. The peace offering to the Insurgents today was in the shape of awarding them a place on the committee on committees, the powerful governing body of the majority party. The seat went to Senator Nye of North Dakota, one of the most consistent Republican Insurgents in the senate.

Watson of Indiana, was named chairman of the committee on committees. Others elected were McNary of Oregon, Moses of New Hampshire, Smoot of Utah, Reed of Pennsylvania, Gooding of Idaho and Oddie of Nevada.

Reed of Pennsylvania, is to conduct the fight to seat Vare.

He declared today he was "confident that Senator Vare will be seated." He has declined, however, to reveal the means by which this is to be accomplished.

and power stations line the Genesee river to remove immense quantities of debris. Several hundred men, assisted by cranes, worked throughout the night to avert the danger of a jam when the crest strikes.

Meanwhile, every highway along the river valley has been inundated and work of rescuing marooned farmers and motorists was rushed in expectation of the still higher water.

Tributaries of the Genesee, thrown back by the rising water, have flooded an enormous extent of lowlands, taxing every agency in the rescue of stock and human being. Rapidly falling temperatures were adding to the suffering.

At Belmont, Alleghany county, the river had reached its highest point in history today. Waterloo reported its homes without heat and industries idle. Towand creek has left its banks.

Despite the advance precautions of railroad and power company employes, the Keuke Lake outlet from Pennyan to Dresden became a raging torrent carrying bridges and dams before it. Pennyan was without heat or power.

Angelica reported that water mains were washed out and the city was without gas. Small buildings and much livestock were carried away at Addison by the swiftly rising Canisteo river.

Firemen Answer Thirty Alarms

City firemen answered 30 alarms of fire in the month of November. With the exception of two, the losses were little or nothing at all. There were two fires that showed a loss of $1900 out of the total loss. The average loss per alarm was exceedingly small.

Two fires outside the city were answered. One was to the Crawford-Oakridge home on Atlantic avenue, where the firemen did excellent work. The other was to an east side garage, where the fire was started by an unknown person stealing gasoline from the tank of one of the trucks in the place.

WALL PAPER PANELING
Very often it is desirable to break up the side walls of a room with panels of paper. Sometimes architects make this necessary by putting in woodwork that leaves only certain spaces available for paper. For such purposes we have wall papers in tapestry effects that are most appropriate. Come and see what we have to show you.

VERY HANDSOME DOLLAR BILLS WERE $2.75 EACH NOW ONLY $1.50 EACH

See Pollyanna at the Senior High School Tonight

Remember This When You Buy Diamonds-Jewelry-And-Silverware

If money were sold in stores no sensible person would buy a dollar bill for $1.50 simply because the store keeper used to have it priced at $2.75. Similarly a diamond ring at $150 may still be greatly overpriced even though it once was marked $275. Since it is impossible to judge the worth of a piece of jewelry by the amount it has been "reduced." We do not hold so-called "sales" EITHER IN JANUARY, FEBRUARY OR ANY OTHER MONTH.

Thus we are able to mark our Jewelry at all times with our minimum prices. Experience has proved that regular Mather prices, such as those at which we are selling our jewelry today, are as low, or lower than the prices charged for Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry of a similar quality during the conventional "sale" periods.

THE NEW FORD

HENRY FORD has usurped the place of Barnum as the world's master showman of all ages. Barnum had them coming from miles around but he never had an entire nation eagerly awaiting a glimpse of what he had to offer.

There may be other manufacturers who could afford to suspend production for months while spending a hundred millions or more for installation of new machinery and development of a new product, but the country has yet to see the color of the hair of another who can compel the world to stand on tiptoe to get a peek at what he is producing, beg and plead for information concerning it, print hundreds of columns guessing about it and make it the topic of conversation in business, financial, social and sporting circles.

It is an interesting commentary on the growth of the automobile industry that in the relatively short space of time since Ford entered it it should have taken its place with steel and the railroads as a business barometer. Only a nation unprecedently rich could support such a market.

The new Ford car has not been a source of concern for the rest of the industry. Rather, other makers have looked forward to its appearance in the belief that it will stimulate sales for all makes of automobiles. It is not to be denied that many persons have deferred buying a new car until the new Ford product appeared. Manufacturers are now predicting a consumptive capacity that will tax the production of the whole industry when the Ford factories are again going at full blast.

Everybody is interested in automobiles and in the continued prosperity of the automobile industry. Employing hundreds of thousands of men, it and its allied industries produce a large part of the country's wealth.

WHEN EVERYONE TALKS PEACE

A COMPLETE assortment of plans and schemes to end war by treaties, leagues and agreements are waved aside by President Coolidge as so much waste paper not worth the sorting. The president is not one of those so lacking in understanding of human shortcomings as to believe there is a short cut to permanent world peace.

When eternal and universal peace comes it will not be by treaty or other international agreement. It may as well be admitted that where there is a disposition to go to war no international agreements will prevent hostilities. Where the controlling majority would rather fight than arbitrate nothing can keep it from fighting.

So schooled are European nations in violating treaties that no one could convince them the American people as a whole would not tolerate such a breach of contract by their government. In the opinion of many, treaties are made to be broken. The American people have never said what they would do if surrounded by powerful and belligerent nations. It is easy for a country with its back to the wall to regard a treaty as a scrap of paper.

The president's contempt for peace plans should not be construed as arguing that he does not appreciate the salutary effect of peace talk. Plans to outlaw war, in that they tend to strengthen the will to peace, serve a useful purpose. The more minds centered on peace the fewer minds there will be to concoct more wars.

It is easy to talk the emotional into war. It is less easy to talk them into peace.

REDUCING THE DEBT

THE comparative ease with which the nation has carried the burden of war debt has apparently lessened public concern about its rapid reduction, though it is still large enough to require more than one-fifth of all government expenditures to meet the interest and principal payments.

There has been a reduction of debt from the peak of $25,234,496,274 in 1919, with interest charges of $1,052,333,621, to approximately $18,500,000,000. Interest for the last fiscal year was $787,019,578. Through reduction of the debt this year the interest payment for the current year will be $67,000,000 less than last year.

Many financiers regard the debt as still so large as to be a source of embarrassment in times of business depression. They believe there should be no letup in payment until it is well below $15,000,000,000, where there will be less danger in permitting the sinking fund and such other funds as are dedicated to the purpose to bear the load.

Every taxpayer knows that the country's business prosperity has made possible the rapid reduction of the war debt and that a serious business depression would put upon the taxpayers the whole burden of meeting the interest payments and reducing the debt.

With their traditional belief in getting rid of such obligations, the people have been slow to quarrel with the administration's policy of paying while the country is prosperous and can stand the drain. They are not deceived by the outbursts of those members of congress who, for the sake of tax reduction, would leave nothing in the treasury for debt reduction. If the politically-minded congressmen could read the American character they would discover that debt reduction is better vote-buying coin than tax reduction.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:34. Sun rises tomorrow 7:07.

Every time there is an election in Mexico there is a boom in shotgun practice.

The old song to the effect "They're Wearing 'em Higher in Hawaii" lost it's pep when they started doing it in the United States.

Billy Sunday said again that no man can roll into the White House on a beer keg as president of the United States. He also said that Al Smith would be defeated if he is nominated. We agree to both of Bill's statements.

Discovery of 52 insane persons driving automobiles in Detroit put the estimate much lower than most of us would have suspected.

Bank robbers and other kinds of thieves show poor judgment in our humble opinion when they steal automobiles to make their get-away in. The automobile is often the best means of identification. Walking away from a thieving job seems the safest to us and we admit we do not know anything about getting away from a burglary.

A bigamist loves not wisely but too well.

Five hundred and thirty thousand and one foreigners came to this country from Europe in the year ending last June 1. That means that there are just that many happy souls in this country who have escaped the oppression of their home lands. It must be a great relief to get into a great country like America.

A woman was arrested for reckless driving. She said she believed in equality of the sexes. She got sixty days. She'll have to think up a better answer next time.

All an ordinary, decent God-fearing citizen has to do these days to experience a blood-curdling chill is to read the evidence in half a dozen or so murder trials now going on in different parts of this country. They mostly all have to do with the murder of a wife or a husband. There are people who should not be allowed to get married as they do not know how to behave.

A young woman out west is reported as having had three husbands in three months. We think she ought to have the loving cup.

We had an invitation to go deer hunting this fall and we refused to go because we felt quite safe in thinking that someone would shoot at us in mistake for a deer or sumpin'.

People with gimlet eyes usually are terrible bores.

Some of the birds who think they are mighty important are the kind that will never be missed when they go most anywhere even to the cemetery. Live your life so you will be missed when you pass out.

It wouldn't do a fellow any good to tell a hairraising story at the Bald Head Club's convention.

One thing we positively do not want for a Christmas gift is automobiles. We are giving this out before any one buys any for us.

Anybody can be foolish. It takes quite a guy to be sensible.

A chap down in New York lost his voice after being hit in the head with a hammer. A good thing to remember.

It is said that big feet are no disgrace. This relieves us a lot, even if our feet are not too big to suit us.

You will be able to buy just as good Christmas gifts in New Castle as any where and in addition to getting good value you will be helping out the home merchant who deserves your support. The place to start boosting your home town is by spending your money at home and you get a chance to get it back some time. When it goes out of town it's gone forever.

A self lighting cigarette has been invented. Now if some attachment can be put on it that will also put it out it will save a lot of runs by the fire department.

An authority from the State Dental Health Association gives out the information that it is wrong to whip a child when it is naughty. The kiddo should be taken to the bath room and have it's teeth cleaned. The only thing that sounds irregular about that is it comes from a dentist.

The sky makes a lovely covering for warm nights but it leaks sometimes.

Modernized version of "They lived happily ever after": They liked the same radio programs.

The other day we were in the Colonial Ice Cream store at the corner of North Mercer and North streets. Our old friend Frank Boal, the proprietor of the place was cooking a ham on the barbeque. We mentioned that we would like to have a chicken cooked that way. In his congenial way Frank said, "Bring it in." We did this and for dinner yesterday we enjoyed the best chicken it has ever been our good fortune to enjoy. He sure knows how to cook the meat.

WHO PAID FOR IT?

Two non-advertisers manufactured practically the same kind of rat traps, costing 15 cents each, which were sold to the trade at 20 cents, the purchaser paying 30 cents.

One of the producers decided to advertise. His increased sales enabled him to make the traps for 10 cents each. He then sold them to the trade for 15 cents. The purchaser bought them at 25 cents.

Who paid for the advertising?

Not the maker of the rat traps, because he made more money by selling more traps. Not the retailer, for he made the same profit on less outlay. Not the purchaser, because he bought for five cents less.

Who paid for the advertising?

An advance suggestion for a New Year's resolution: To attend strictly to business—your own business.

Really, the greatest difference between American and European aviators is the Atlantic Ocean.

Judging from some recent advertisements, nowadays kisses are taken for granted.

In Egypt a plate over the door means there is a marriageable girl in the house. They advertise differently in America.

If he is the town's leading citizen he is away from home most of the time.

The sexes are becoming more and more alike, and we are wondering if the women will take to handshaking and the men to kissing when they meet.

THE MEDICAL PROFESSION

Governor Fred W. Green of Michigan has been giving some good advice. Here it is: Physicians should advertise instead of leaving "the tremendous power of newspaper publicity in the hands of quacks and charlatans."

The Governor also said that, as a business man, he was unable to see why the medical profession had not heretofore adopted the use of newspapers for educating the public in ordinary hygiene and the selection of proper physicians.

Physicians are not now actually advertising to any appreciable extent, but they are more inclined that way, and some day, not so far in the distant future we hope, their advertising influence may be both real and apparent.

A great many people are a howling success at just howling.

There is evidence to support the contention that a number of clergymen of some denominations have eliminated hell from the future before they did on earth.

The average man, so recently selected and given a big send-off, has dropped from sight, thus meeting the fate of the average.

In this matter of achieving advantageous publicity, the shades of Barnum gracefully yield to the ability of Ford.

It looks more and more every day like a short winter. So far winter has tried hard to get here, but it hasn't succeeded, although we have had hints of cold weather on several occasions.

It seems necessary to deny every once in a while the report that the American government had to pay rent to France for the trenches the American troops occupied during the war. It seems as though this is false. The only rent the government paid to France was for drill and maneuver grounds on which to train the soldiers. Trenches were dug in the ground for practice and training, but we didn't have to pay rent for the trenches.

It is reported that the feet of English girls are getting larger, along with feet of American girls. Perhaps they have to get out and walk home, also.

TODAY'S STORYETTE

A colored gentleman started a newspaper down in Alabama. He had noticed how white editors used the word "we" for "I". He went them one better when he said:

"Us sho' feels grateful fo' all de good things dat's said 'bout us's paper."

Another person who doesn't stir our enthusiasm to any great extent is the one that always comes around after you've closed the deal and paid the first installment on your new car and wonders why you bought that kind when you could have gotten a much better one for the same money.

Christmas seals have been sent out as usual this year and the good citizens of the city are asked to buy them and use them on Christmas mail. If everyone buys a few the sale will be large and the revenue will go a long way in helping in the battle against tuberculosis.

We believe it would help the government in the prosecution of its oil cases and others if it could get that man, W. J. Burns, back into the secret service.

It takes some thinking to give proper names to the people who are heard but not seen in air programs. Last night we happened to tune in just in time to hear the "zipper boot" quartet. Guess the old woman who lives in the shoe must have been the soprano of the outfit.

This is the time of year to get out the Christmas cards that were received last year and put the senders on the list for one this year.

It isn't always the biggest car that honks the loudest. The same is true with people. And with machinery the worn out engine makes the most noise.

A very large order of overalls has been sent to China. But this does not mean that the Chinese are to quit fighting and go to work. Overalls is the uniform of the army. So there you have it.

Four Years? Too Short.
Some Did Not Marry.
Ford Teaches Thinking.
Little Ticker Tape.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1927, By N. Y. American, Inc.

Russia startles the league at Geneva, proposing to wipe out warfare, junk all armies, navies and armaments absolutely in four years.

Revolution is enthusiastic. Russia believes that in a few years it can change an uneducated Proletariat, transform 150 million uneducated, unthinking human beings into mental and moral equals of the world's best. Nice thought, but it can't be done. To change a man you must change the shape of his forehead, the kind and size of his brain and deepen its convolutions. That takes generations, some times thousands of them, not four years.

Mr. Haldeman-Julius, of Kansas, whose daughter is just trying a "companionate marriage" experiment, tells the world that his daughter was born six years before he, Haldeman-Julius, her father, was married. He did not have money to set up housekeeping, but the dear little girl was born anyhow.

That is interesting, not unusual. Leonardo Da Vinci, second in greatness among all artists, was born outside of marriage, his father and mother never married. He supported his legitimate, respectable high-born half brothers and sisters.

William the Conqueror was born before his father married the interesting girl whom he first saw washing clothes in a brook as he rode past with his warriors.

But all that doesn't change the fact that marriage is better than lack of marriage. Marriage will not go out of fashion. It will persist until men become worthy of an institution at present too good for many of them.

While introducing his new car to the world Henry Ford also introduces a new kind of school which he maintains near his famous Wayside Inn. He says the main object of the school is "TO TEACH THINKING."

That is the only education worth while, and the kind of education most generally neglected, especially in the big universities.

They teach NOT THINKING.

The value of what you eat depends on what you digest. The value of what you read depends on what you think. Ford's educational system mixes teaching the hands with teaching the mind. Our public schools should try that and look into the Ford method.

Wall Street tape, the little piece of white paper that runs through the ticker, was 20 minutes behind yesterday, could not keep up with the extraordinary speculation.

Stocks sailed up again. Steel, General Motors, etc. Three million shares were bought by somebody who evidently believes the time for that "necessary slump" has not yet come.

James Speyer's statement, that prosperity is our normal condition, just as health is the normal condition of a healthy man, as long as he abstains from foolishness, is the best description of this fortunate land.

Sudbury, in good Massachusetts, and its town council mean it when they demand President Coolidge for a second elective term. In fact, they go further, voting 6 to 1 to double his salary and make him president for life. Irving A. Priest, Boston banker, head of Sudbury's town committee, says the real Uncle Sam has come to life in President Coolidge, who is "thin, sharp featured, grim, deliberate, cool, firm, patient, sagacious, tolerant, kind, Christian."

Mr. Coolidge is all those things and some others, but he agrees with George Washington that the people don't want any president for life, not even if the Angel Gabriel came down and offered to take the job.

A monument to Theodore Roosevelt will be erected above the Culebra cut overlooking the Panama Canal. Roosevelt deserves the honor; the monument should be a fine one.

All his interesting talk, advising women to have 19 children, etc., will be forgotten. But the fact that he put through the Panama Canal will NOT be forgotten. In that he rendered his country great service.

President Coolidge, a man of few words, regrets that his message to Congress could not be shorter. Madame De Sevigne wrote to her daughter, "If I had had more time I should have written you a shorter letter." Considering the field covered the president's message will be found shorter than most men could have made it. His "I do not choose" proves ability to say much in a few words.

In Day's News

A. J. Cook, who led the march of the Welsh miners to London to present a petition to Parliament asking that the Government intervene in the coal industry, which no longer affords them a livelihood, has been fighting the battles of the miners for many years. Born in barracks, the son of a private in the British army, Mr. Cook was compelled to shift for himself at the early age of twelve. For four years he worked on a farm, and at sixteen he was a preacher in a Baptist chapel. Then he went to work in the mines of the Rhonda Valley, where he was doomed to work with pick and shovel for twenty-one years. In 1918 he became prominent in the affairs of the Welsh miners' union and in 1924 his years of toil and endeavor were rewarded with election to the position of secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain. It is said of Mr. Cook, who is now 42 years of age, that he has never found time for recreation.

PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION

The Kaiser was reported to have said the other day, "I am sixty-eight years old. Looking back over the pinnacle of my years and my experience, I am glad to say, I have no philosophy except my religion."

The Kaiser seems to draw a distinction between a philosophical person and a religious person.

But religion is really a philosophy and having a philosophy simply means a way of looking at life.

Religion is one attitude towards life and irreligion another.

The irreligious has as much of a philosophy as the religious.

Religion is not a set of forms and ceremonies nor a compendium of beliefs. In the last analysis it is one's way of acting.

The early apostles spoke of the Christians as people who lived according to a certain "way."

Much trouble has been caused in the world by thinking that religion is merely a belief about getting safely into the next world. Really, it is a way of looking at this world.

It is a point of view that controls our actions. It is a method by which we live and by which we think.

Religion is merely belief that the cosmic processes are so and so.

Jesus Christ was not only a founder of a religion, but his philosophy of living was remarkable.

The main thing about the Kaiser's philosophy is that it is all wrong. By separating his religion and his philosophy he has divided his belief about life and his method of living into two parts. This cannot be done.

Religion is of no value unless it enters into our daily conduct, our speech and our thoughts.

Every one is a sort of philosopher, that is, he has a way of looking at things and runs true to form.

One may have a philosophy and yet it may change from day to day, but the new way of looking at things is quite as much a philosophy as the old.

Bible Thought For Today

SWEET MEDITATION:—My meditation of him shall be sweet; I will be glad in the Lord. Psalm 104:34.

PRAYER: "Come, we that love the Lord, And let our joys be known."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

A REAL POLANDER.

A man of more than usual history died November 11th, in Los Angeles. He bore an illustrious name. He was an expatriate from his own country,—not because his country loved him less, but because in his youth his native Poland had lost control of its affairs. His name and title was Col. John Sobieski. By right and descent, he should have been King of Poland, as he was sixth in line from King John the Third of that country.

He was an exile with his widowed mother at the age of six; in his twelfth year he stowed himself away on the U. S. S. Constellation and thus entered the United States. He drifted West and at sixteen was with the United States Army fighting Indians; at twenty-two a buglar at Gettysburg, where he received what the surgeons considered a mortal wound, but he recovered. He was later assigned by President Lincoln to spy at Richmond upon the Confederate fortifications; later still in the capacity of a spy he reported to the President of the condition of the fortifications at Mobile and was mustered out at the close of the war. He then enlisted in the cause to free Mexico, going to Mexico overland; became a Colonel in the Mexican Army and after eighteen months of service against the usurper Maximillian found himself assigned to the command of the firing squad which executed the Emperor. After that he was hailed as one of the Saviours of Mexico and was offered 10,000 acres of land in recognition of his services, but he had become a citizen of the United States and returned to take up his residence in Minnesota. He served in the Minnesota State assembly, but his political career was ended when he introduced Bills against capital punishment, the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquor and the enfranchisement of women,—all three measures looked upon at that time as simply the vagaries of a fanatic.

He lived in Los Angeles for the last twenty-seven years of his life and died at the age of eighty-five.

There is still a Sobieski in line left, however, for he is survived by his grandson, John Gilhousen Sobieski, eighth in the line of old King John.

Just Folks

CHARACTER

There is a beauty seldom seen
Until it fades away,
A loveliness which once has been,
But cannot be today.

A smile but little noticed when
The donor still was here,
But since he cannot smile again
We see it shining clear.

The little kindly deeds which were
But never more shall be,
The lovely traits of character
Were beautiful to see.

But, oh! we scarcely turned an eye
Throughout our busy days
To all such beauty passing by,
Or mentioned it in praise.

And artists do not catch the touch
Which marked the friendly hand
Or paint the charms we love so much
Yet fail to understand.

But little traits of kindly men,
Repeated o'er and o'er,
Stand out in radiant beauty when
They shall be seen no more.

In all men lies a beauty which Seems poorly robed today,
That shall appear in splendor rich
When it has passed away.

C. B. D. CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

HE NEVER GUESSES

Orville Wright is one of the most interesting men I have talked to lately. I spent five delightful hours with him in his little office and workshop in Dayton, Ohio, recently. I found him unusual and unique in many respects. But most unusual in this, that he has a head full of figures, and still talks well.

Most men with mathematical minds are useful, but not interesting. They are capable of performing great services to their communities of to their race, but they do not know why the bees goes so often to the flower, or why tears and laughter are so closely allied.

Now, Orville Wright has a passion for accuracy. He is more devoted to accuracy than any other man I have ever met. But he also has interesting ideas about the future of our civilization, and he can talk well on many topics not at all related to aviation.

Mr. Wright spoke much of his brother, Wilbur, and I could not help thinking that these two brothers, who were so closely associated from babyhood until death took one of them, will be forever together in the minds of men. The airplane is the invention of Orville and Wilbur Wright. They worked out every little problem making up the big problem, together. They built their wind tunnel together. They made their models together. They built the first flying machine that ever flew, together.

The Wrights didn't guess when they were designing the first flying machine. I have never met a man who placed such emphasis upon exactness as does Orville Wright. His brother must have been just like him in this respect. For they knew their machine would fly before ever its little gasoline motor started to pop. They had worked out laws of flight. They had gone back to first principles. They had calculated exactly the stress and strain at every point. They knew with precision just what this strange-looking contraption would do when the time came for it to fly.

And it flew. Mr. Wright told me how, on that memorable day at Kitty Hawk, he and his brother tossed a coin for the honor of occupying the place at the control bar on the first trial.

Wilbur won the toss, and took his seat. Something went wrong. That day the plane didn't fly. Next day it was Orville's turn. He flew! Ages of history will look back to that moment, when Orville Wright became the first flying man, for never before had a flying machine flown. Gliders had glided, but without motive power. But now the world had flight. Aviation was born.

Orville Wright is an exact, accurate thinker. Had he been otherwise, flying might still be a strange, tantalizing dream of the human race.

The Daybook OF A New Yorker

BY BURTON RASCOE

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Differences in word meanings, peculiar to different parts of the nation are nowhere more pronounced than in New York. With a population composed of few native sons, the lingual phenomena make themselves evident in various ways. For example, an advertisement for a department store lists a bargain in "puffs". The ad writer is obviously a New Englander, "puffs" being colloquialism for a comforter or for the mid-western "quilt". Again, advertisements for New England summer resorts list their establishments as "spas". This is also Yankee for a restaurant or soda fountain as well as a beach resort.

The girl who came from the south was non-plussed when her New York friend called an article of kitchenware a "spider". She had always known it simply as a frying pan. The grammar school student who came from the far west thought it not a little prissy to hear his contemporaries say "it is, so" when they meant "it is, too." Almost everywhere but in New York, an apartment is popularly known as a "flat". However, the use of the former word is growing more popular. The out-of-towner refers to Grand Central or to Pennsylvania as a "station" and he is somewhat surprised to hear the native call it a "terminal". The list is limitless. These few examples I have listed will illustrate the manner in which the observant New Yorker will familiarize himself with the language of the conglomerate nation, though his travels are bounded on the south by the Battery and on the north by the outmost Harlem speakeasy.

Since Ruth Elder drove up Broadway with the mayor, beneath a mild flurry of confetti, a movie place offered her $1,000 a day for 100 days' booking. Ruth accepted. One of the features of the show was a song, composed in Miss Elder's honor by the distinguisher orchestral conductor, David Mendoza, and by Doctor Axt, a musical director of the theatre. If its music proves palatable to the public, surely its name should seal its doom. The song is called "Flaming Ruth".

At any rate, these synthetic, flung-together ballads, seeking to cash in on the glory of the trans-Atlantic flyers, have not as yet met success. Some half dozen featuring Lindbergh's name slid to a swift and complete oblivion shortly after their birth.

Have you ever noticed how movies drag out the scene in which the hero and heroine first kiss? Yesterday, I sam a film named "Pajamas". When love or ambition, or enlightened endoctrines stirred the senses of the featured pair, it took at least three whole minutes before they kissed. All this time their close-up lips were moving toward each other by infinitesimal stages. And as they did so, I could feel the audience subconsciously urging them on—straining forward. At the exact moment that the two screen characters kissed, a portly gentleman was unable to control that impulse, and the oppressively silent house was shattered by a deafening sneeze. Simultaneously, everyone fell to laughing heartily, and then clapping. The gentleman who had sneezed, stealthily made his exit.

Coin In Slot Drink To Cheat Closing Law For London Dealers

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Whisky from the automatic machine may possibly become practical politics in Britain in the near future. Some daring distillers are already considering testing the legality of such a scheme.

The sale of spirits in Britain is analagous to the principle involved in the restricted sale of cigarettes. Both commodities can only be bought within certain hours, but whereas the line of finality in regard to the sale of cigarettes at night is eight o'clock, whiskey can be legally procured until 10:30.

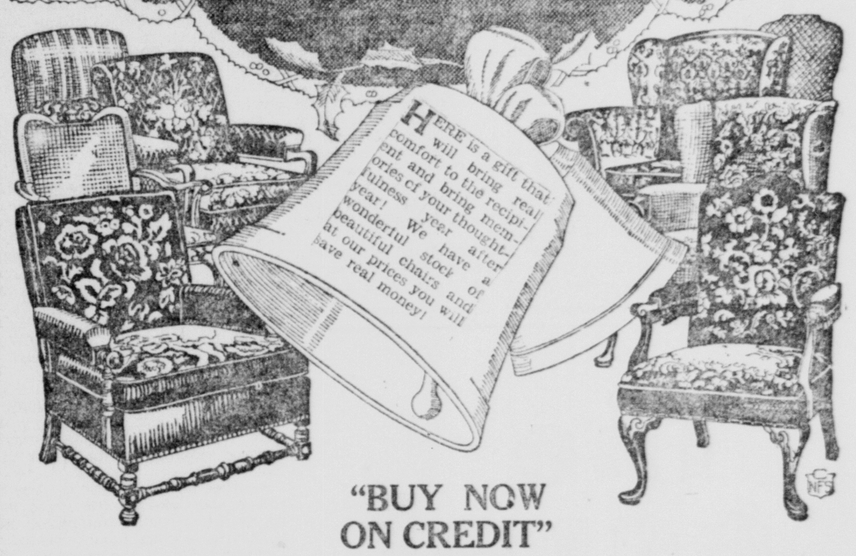

But several years ago, some brainy storekeepers discovered that although their stores could not be kept open for the sale of cigarettes after 8 p. m. there was apparently no law to prevent them from installing an automatic machine outside their stores and allowing would-be purchasers to obtain all the cartons they need by just dropping a coin in the slot. The Government fought against the innovation, but the Courts, declared it legal, and now every cigar-store has its machine outside after 8 p. m.

And, the saloon-keepers are now asking themselves why they should not do the same thing on precisely similar ground. It is no more difficult to deliver whiskey from a machine than it is milk, and, anyhow, comfortably sized flasks would suit the requirements of most thirsty customers.

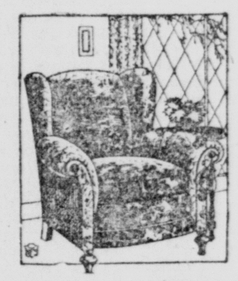

In the opinion of many, such a scheme satisfies all legal conditions for the sale of liquor.

Not a single infectious disease is known in Greenland.

New Safe Deposit Vault Of Union Trust Company Is Now In Operation

Safe Deposit Department Of Bank Is In Service At Big Institution

New Department Is Most Modern And Secure Possible In Banking World

In connection with its fine new safe deposit vault, the Union Trust Company of New Castle has placed in operation what has been designated as the safe deposit department of the bank, which means that in addition to the latest modern safe deposit equipment, this banking institution is also providing a personal service that is intended to meet every possible need of the patrons of the bank, especially in the matter of the use of the safe deposit equipment of the bank.

The fine new safe deposit vault, the last word in construction of this kind, is located on the first floor and at the rear of the main banking room. As it is approached from the main banking room, the patron finds the registration department, where the first of that special personal service is rendered.

Having been registered, the patron then enters the fine new room at the rear, where the new safe deposit vault is located. The first thing that greets the eyes is the wonderful circular door of the vault, which has a weight of 28 tons. There is no door made that has greater strength or greater resisting properties than this door. It is constructed of "Donsteel", which is a non-burnable and nondrillable metal that affords the patron of the bank the utmost in security for his or her valuables.

The vault and its equipment is the work of the Mosler Safe and Lock Company of Hamilton, O.

On entering the vault the patron is at once impressed with its massiveness, its strength and also its spaciousness. The interior is approximately 18 by 24 feet in size and the ceiling is approximately eight feet in height.

The several walls are lined from the floor to the ceiling with safe deposit boxes of the latest type. They are of varying sizes and placement, so as to meet with the requirements of every class of patron.

They are equipped with new style 21-tumbler Mosler locks. The locks are interchangeable, it being possible as soon as a patron has given up a box that a new key combination may be set up and a new key put in use before it is turned over to a new renter. It eliminates any possibility of apprehension or misunderstanding in the use of the deposit boxes.

Another interesting feature of the vault is the presence at all times of a competent male attendant, whose duty it is to render whatever service may be required by the renter of a box.

Another feature of the vault is the rectangular door at the north side, by means of which the patron may go to the coupon rooms, located on the north side of the building. This door is of the same construction and material as the massive circular front door of the vault, and weighs 17 tons.

There are 10 of these coupon rooms, eight being equipped for use by individual persons and two of larger size, where attorneys may discuss matters with their clients.

Doors of the coupon rooms are equipped with the latest type automatic locks, which again afford the patrons an unusual feeling of security in the transaction of their affairs.

These doors are automatically locked as the patron enters them. A simple turn of the door handle on the inside opens the door, and as the patron leaves the door is again automatically closed and locked, until it is opened by the attendant and set ready for use by the next patron. In this manner the patron is protected against possible loss or misplacement of valuable articles and papers until the places have been inspected by the attendant and made ready for the next customer.

The vault is located on the first floor of the bank, adding to the comfort of the patrons in the use of this privilege, and is also well lighted and well ventilated. The ventilation is made perfect by specially installed fans to keep the air circulating and changing.

From the time the patron arrives at the registration department until their business with their safe deposit box is completed and they leave the vault there is that constant personal service which makes the Union Trust Company a pleasant, safe place to do business.

The Secret

The real secret of the surprising goodness of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans is that they really are baked in ovens, and like the best home-baked beans, are nut-brown, mealy and digestible, with a flavor that brings the plates back for more.

Beans that aren't oven-baked can't be labelled "baked". For truly baked beans look for the Heinz label that says "Oven-Baked" · The taste is the test.

Small Bridge Near Mercer Washed Out

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 2.—The Department of Highways announced Thursday that a county bridge in Mercer county, between Mercer and the Crawford county line, on route 88, was washed out last night. A detour was set up through Hadley.

The department also said there is over two feet of water on a section of the Roosevelt Highway, route 7, adjoining Warren county.

Famous Diamond Back With Owners

(International News Service)

PARIS, Dec. 2.—The celebrated rose diamond is once more back in its case in the Chateau of Chantilly, from which it was stolen a year ago. For several days the Paris police were unable to trace the culprit. Finally, a French chambermaid bit into an apple belonging to one of the hotel guests, and struck the valuable jewel.

London Night Clubs Need American Snap; Losing Their Thrill

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Although their cocktails, their wines and their beautiful girls are plentiful, and their prices reasonable, London's night clubs are going to sleep. What apparently is needed is a little American snap and competition, for to quote a great many people's opinion of them, "they seem dead from the doorstep up".

Once there was a thrill in the phrase, "Nights of London", but that is gradually dying out. It is difficult to trace the reason in the majority of cases. Old-timers blame it on the largeness of the present clubs and their unfriendly, aloof atmosphere.

It was just after the war that the small, inexpensive night club sprang into fame, the type which was noted for its cheapness, cosiness, decent cooking, moderately good orchestra, and most of all, its unstudied, friendly atmosphere. But, unlike other aftermaths of the war, this seems to be rapidly disappearing.

State Of War Stirs British Film Industry

Independent Exhibitors, With 3,000 Theaters, In Battle With Trust

Fear American Pictures May Obtain Control Of Too Many Houses

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A state of war now exists in the British film industry.

The two "armies" now facing each other are the independent exhibitors, representing probably 3,000 cinema theatres, and a group made up of companies, controlling circuits of theatres along with companies which combine film exhibition with film production.

It is the independents who have declared war.

They have drafted a plan whereby the independents, through a central organization, should hire their pictures as a society and not as individuals. By this scheme they expect:

Preservation of capital already invested.

Securing of films at economic prices.

Participation of exhibitors in the normal development of the industry.

Fear Americans

The reasons for this movement appear to be a fear that the wealthy American film companies mean to buy or obtain control of many British cinemas, and a resentment of the position of Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, an organization which controls 110 movies in Britain, and for some time the independents have been considering a counter organization.

At the same time the independents dread the encroachment of the American film companies. Therefore a thrilling situation has been created by the statement made by A. Evans, managing director of the Provincial Cinematograph Theatres, that if the proposed new "National Circuit" becomes a fact, he will at once sell the chain of theatres under his control to one or the other of American corporations who have already offered to buy.

One of the American companies mentioned in this respect has been the First National, who have, in turn, stated that they have no intention of buying British theatres.

Careful Campaign

If this "national circuit" is brought into being, then a film war involving millions of opunds will at once begin, and in it every great American company will be almost forced to take a hand.

The independents have considered their plans of campaign very fully, and, in addition to setting out in complete detail a common hiring scheme, under which the rentals of pictures would be lowered, they also mention the possibility of financing the building of studios, taking an interest in British production and in the purchase of the British rights of foreign films.

Such a course as the latter would certainly paralyze the entire film industry in Britain.

National Law Assn. To Teach Citizens Good Government

(International News Service)

DUQUOIN, Ill., Dec. 2.—An educational campaign to teach citizens the basic principals of government so they may better obey United States laws will be launched by the National Law Association, according to Judge George W. Dowell, first vice president and counsel of the organization.

The association is organizing in every state in its efforts to have repealed all obsolete laws, condense the criminal laws and enact necessary laws to show citizens the value of law obedience.

The National Law Association, according to Judge Dowell, is compiling and will soon have ready for distribution statistics from all over the nation showing cause of committal, nationality, religion, habits and other data concerning inmates in prison.

Candidacy May Be Decided By Message To Congress

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Unless President Coolidge comes out flat-footed December 5 against more than eight years for any one man in the White House, Washington will make up its mind that he's willing to be drafted next year.

On December 5 congress will meet. The president's message will be read.

It will be an appropriate time and place for him to go officially on record and clear up every bit of doubt and uncertainty if he wants to. If he fails to do it it will generally be assumed that he doesn't want to.

It doesn't settle the argument to say that the president announced he doesn't "choose' to run again and that ends it, because it doesn't necessarily end it by any means.

Cal must know he left a lot of people wondering if he mightn't run anyway, even though he doesn't "choose"—if drafted.

Suppose a guest at your home declines any more turkey; and you urge him to take some more; and he sitesteps a repettion of his original refusal—aren't you justified in suspecting that he'll eat another helping if it's forced on him?

On the tehory that the president will have nothing furter to say about another term unless he has to a plot is brewing to make him say something one way or the other, whether or not he "chooses."

It won't work, however.

Senator LaFolette will introduce a measure early in the coming session looking toward a constitutional amendment limiting any president to two full terms (President Coolidge, of course if renominated and re-elected will have two and a fraction.)

The scheme's to get this proposition through congress and up to Cal, to sign or veto—fish or cut bait, so to speak.

Its weakness is that congress won't pass it. The senate probably will—but this house of representatives never—that is if it will embarrass President Coolidge.

Still it may make an annoying amount of talk.

If any drafting's to be done the talk can't be helped.

If, on the other hand the president positively doesn't mean to run again in 1928 under any circumstances he can take the pep out of the whole program by declaring explicitly that he's opposed in principle to a president's re-election more than just once —regardless of the length of his initial tenure or of the fashion in which he got in the first time.

A paragraph like this in the presidential message would end all suggestions of drafting at once but if that's the president's meaning why not?

Congress could go ahead then and pass the LaFollette measure as overwhelmingly as it liked—there'd be no sting in it for President Coolidge. On the contrary it would be an endorsement of his position on perhaps the most important question raised in American history since George Washington gave the country to understand he didn't want to be king.

Indeed it would hardly be necessary for congress to act—the precedent would be about binding enough.

In case this is what the president does it would be most unfair to surmise that the prospect of congressional action—or talk—influenced him.

For all anybody knows he's had it in mind all along.

Cabinet Is Too Old; Average Is 60 Years; Call For Young Men

By F. A. WRAY
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Dec. 2.—An outcry has arisen among government supporters because the cabinet is "too old." Its average age is 60.2 years.

Feeling has been strong in the matter among the younger Tories for some time, and the matter has been brought to a head by the promotion to the cabinet of Roland McNeill, in place of Lord Cecil. McNeill's age is 66.

These young men had thought that Cecil's resignation would have been welcomed as an opportunity for reshuffle of the cabinet, letting in younger men. This idea had been stimulated by recent utterances of Premier Baldwin wherein he laid tribute to the value of youth in politics. Speaking a few days ago at Cardiff, the premier said: "Our greatest leader, Disraeli, said that no party that failed to attract youth into its ranks could live. We are the party to day that is attracting the youth of the country."

One of the younger members of parliament, Ralph Hall Caine, declares that the settled Tory Party policy is to encourage young men when out of office and neglect them when in power.

"The present government," says Hall Caine, "is to all intents and purposes 90 per cent the same as when Bonar Law took office in 1922. That, is of course, is due to the extraordinary loyalty of Premier Baldwin to his associates.

"Speaking as a businessman, if I were to run my business on loyalty and not on efficiency I should find myself in the bankruptcy court. There are other ways of rewarding a man who has served you well by putting him into a pivotal position.

"In my five years' experience of the House of Commons I have seen young men come in full enthusiasm and I have seen that enthusiasm ebb away. It is necessary for the Tory party to keep fresh, young and vigorous."

Cradle Roll Of Highland Church Is Entertained

Babies And Their Mothers Are Guests Of Department Thursday Afternoon

Mrs. T. J. McFate, superintendent of the cradle roll department of Highland United Presbyterian church, and Mrs. J. W. McCreary, assistant superintendent, entertained the babies of the department and their mothers at a nicely appointed afternoon party and program in the Sunday school room Thursday afternoon.

Green and white colors formed an effective decoration and a miniature Christmas tree added much to the beautiy of the color scheme.

Brief talks were given by Mrs. McFate and Rev. C. J. Williamson. Refreshments were served at small tables by Mrs. W. S. Jones, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Davis, Mrs. Samuel Boughter and Mrs. Daniel Maddocks. Mrs. Samuel Bevin was in charge of the decorations. Flowers were sent as greetings from the beginners' department by the superintendent, Mrs. C. G. Lindner. The flowers were later sent to sick babies of the church.

A program was carried out by some of the older children. Recitations were given by Maryln Pearce, Betty Reed, Dorothy Burton, Philip David Williams, Betty Golden, Richard Balentine, Eleanor Eckles, Temary Jane McFate, Peggy Boughter, Catherine Eskey, Joe Vogan, Jean Chapman, Virginia Wilson. A piano solo was given by Heber Baldwin and a vocal duet by Betty Chapman and Tommy McFate.

The babies present were: William Charles Sankey, Caryln Ann Clark, Patricia Jane Sharp, Raymond Lyndal Wilson, Barbara Louise Chapman James Reid Dickson, Mabel Jean Leighty, Harold Francis Ellison, John Charles Reed, Dorothea Clare Wallace, Theodore George Fordney, Arthur Nelson Bergland, Eleanor Ruth Frannick, Thelma Keller Dayton, Mary Jane Paterson, John Blair Patterson, Charles Harris Kirk, Richard Darrell Copson, Fred William Lanigan, Elma June Fickle, Roland Eugine Miller, Gail Kingsley Frew, Robert Irwin Curry, Harry Lewis Banks, Arctell Grace Hoover, Shirley Gertrude Mitchell, Leslie M. EXPERTS MAKE REPORT ON SEWER EXTENSION NEEDS IN NEW CASTLE

lief sewers needed now, Croton avenue and East Side trunk sewer, $138,000; West Side trunk sewer from junction chamber to Mahoning avenue and Railroad street, $105,000. Neshannock trunk sewer and branches, $177,000 and repair of Snakes Rest ravine and Big Run sewers, $30,000, a total of $450,000.

Providing for sewage flow increase incident to growth of city, for leakage, not practical to eliminate and for a few roof water connections which may not be removed without delay, it will be necessary to increase the capacity of most trunk sewers.

This can be made through replacement of existing mains or by installation of relief sewers on nearby streets to carry a portion of the flow which otherwise would reach the present storm sewers. The main sewers where relief will be required, follow:

Croton avenue and East Side trunk sewer; Neshannock trunk sewer and branches; Snakes Rest ravine sewer; Upper West Side trunk sewer and branches; Lower West Side trunk sewer; hain trunk sewer from junction of East and West Side trunk sewers to Prescott street and miscellaneous branch sewers.

Reporting on future storm water conduits, the experts made use of the "rational method" of analysis which takes into account the duration and intensity of rainfall, relative proportions of pervious and impervious areas, interval required for concentration of rain water in conduits and characteristics, such as grade and smoothness of the interior surface of the pipe.

Needed Storm Sewers

The relief for existing storm waters gives the principal streets on which conduits are necessary as follows: North street from Mill to Shenango river; Norris street, from Grant to North street; Moravia street from Furnace to Big Run Creek; Lutton street, from Mill to Moravia street and Reynolds street, from Mill to Moravia street at an estimated cost of construction of $180,000.

Relative to future storm water collecting conduits the report says: "A total of some 13.5 miles of main storm water conduits will ultimately be required at a cost ranging from $1,300,000 to $1,500,000. Installation of all these conduits can hardly be justified at present, but construction can be undertaken from time to time as development of the local districts demand, and particularly should consideration be given to such construction in advance of permanent paving on the various streets."

General Recommendations

The general recommendations on the sanitary sewer system follow:

Institution of a campaign to eliminate existing roof water connections from the sanitary sewer system, with an inspection of new house connections at time of installation to insure tight pipe joints and exclusion of roof water.

Location of portions of Snakes Rest ravine and Big Run sewers having high leakage with repairs to a limit of $30,000.

Appropriation of $420,000, for relief sewer construction at the present time to be followed by an additional appropriation of $400,000 during the next 10 to 20 years for completion of sanitary relief sewer program.

Recommendations relative to the storm water conduits:

Adoption of a comprehensive plan for storm water conduits in order that short culverts constructed from time to time in ravines throughout the city may conform to the requirements of the general plan.

Appropriation of $180,000, as municipal finances permit for relief storm water conduits in the central business and the Moravia-Lutton street districts.

For Suburban Relief

In referring to the benefits from the relief sewer construction the report says: "Construction of relief sewers without rigid exclusion of roof water connections will be of doubtful value. Furthermore, local backflooding of branch sewers during storms will become more prevalent in future years as increasing sewage flow more nearly equals the capacity of individual sewers. An instance apparently due to such backflooding is now found on Leasure avenue west of Highland.

"While it is not feasible to definitely determine sewage flow from districts outside the city which may be reasonable estimate of the extent of such development and the resulting sewage flow is practical. Likewise "the report continues" it is possible to determine approximately the points at which this sewage would enter the city sewer.

"The results of studies as to extent and location, such as tributary population are tabulated as follows:

Township Needs

From Neshannock township provision should be made for sewage from a population of about 7,500 to be received into the city system through extension of the Mercer street, Neshannock boulevard and Wilmington avenue sewers.

In Hickory township provision for a future population of about 6000 should be made by construction of a sewer in the ravine of Croton avenue, joining the existing sewer along the W. N. Y. & P. tracks. Such a sewer would also serve as a main trunk for the undeveloped portion of the north end of Ward 3 of the present city.

In Shenango township it is probable that development of territory tributary to the Cascade Park intercepting sewer along Big Run will require admission of sewage from a population of some 6000 through direct taps to the present sewer line.

From Taylor township it is reasonable to expect sewage from a population of about 7,500 during future years. Some 300 acres, with a population of 6000 would be tributary to the Big Run sewer at South Jefferson and Moravia street and the remaining 1500 from an area of about 85 acres would be tributary to the West Side trunk sewer at some point north of Mahoning avenue.

Need Pressing in Union Township

In Union township need for sewers is apparent at the present time; in fact, plans are being prepared for the West Washington street and Oakland districts and request has been made to discharge such sewage into the city sewers.

During the next 30 or 40 years, it is probable that sewage from a total outside population of some 13,000, should be received into the city system. Most of this territory could be served by extension of lateral street sewers or direct taps into the West Side intercepting sewer, but for the district north of the Youngstown road, and which would be received at Rebecca street and the present city line, it would be necessary to construct a sewer on Sampson street or build a new marginal sewer paralleling the Shenango river from Rebecca street to junction with the existing trunk sewer at Grant street.

Storm Sewers

The engineering firm in reporting on the future storm water collecting conduits say: "The general routes and needed capacities for future storm water collecting conduits are described under this heading. The conduits are of capacities suitable for collection of runoff from a storm which may be expected on an average of once in 10 years and include allowance for a rate of concentration which would result from a reasonable development of the districts in future years.

It is altogether probable that accurate and detail surveys, such as would be required prior to preparation of construction drawings, would change the routes in some particulars and for this reason the needed carrying capacities of the conduits are given, rather than appropriate sizes which are dependent upon the grade available in any particular location.

Need Is In Future

The report shows the streets, relief needed and the capacity required in each of the wards of the city and says that "an exact estimate of the cost of constructing the storm water trunk sewers would require test pits which are outside the limitations of the present report.

Such an estimate would not be justified at this time "the report continues" as need for construction of many of these sewers will not arise for a number of years. Rough estimate of complete construction cost will range from $1,300,000 to $1,500,000."

Eight Miles Area

Concerning the general conditions the report says the area of New Castle is about 8 miles and a population of 53,000.

The sewer system consists of 84 miles of sanitary sewers and 16 miles of storm water conduits. Comparatively few developed streets are without sanitary sewerage facilities.

The flow from the sanitary sewer system ranges from 3.5 to 4.5 million gallons daily or about 75 gallons per capita. During rainstorms the flow increases to 12 million gallons or more because of roof drains connected to the sanitary sewers and ground water leakage into manholes and sewer lines.

During low and moderate stages in the Mahoning river all sewage passes through the Imhoff tank sewage treatment plant, but during high water stages sewage is bypassed directly to the river.

Several overflows on the sanitary sewers also discharge mingled sewage and storm water into the streams during periods of heavy precipitation.

An ordinance prohibiting the discharge of storm water into the sanitary sewer system has been in effect for many years but in spite of the fact that many such connections have been removed on orders of the city, some still persist.

The central business district is provided with storm water collecting sewers, but in the residential districts storm water, with the exception of a few streets, flows in the gutters to points of discharge in the natural watercourses.

City Planners Tell Of Work

Members Of Board Meet With C. Of C. Board Of Directors

AIRPORT PROJECT IS BEING PUSHED

Declaring that the city Planning commission is endeavoring to make a better regulated city with respect to its physical plan and in doing this, serves better to maintain property values the Planning Commission met with the New Castle Chamber of Commerce board of directors at a luncheon meeting held at noon Thursday at the Elks club.

Members of the Planning Commission who were present were Matthew Gunton, chairman; Paul F. Butz and J. A. Altschuler.

Mr. Gunton in explaining the work of the Planning Commission further stated that if the advices of the commission were to be followed out New Castle never would have a slum or low class tenement district. He also expressed an opinion that New Castle should have additional public recreational facilities in the form of public parks, stating that many of the cities as large and as wealthy as New Castle have parks which comprise 10 per cent of their area.

After Mr. Gunton had spoken the directors received reports from the executive committee and Chairman James M. Smith of the Membership Forum committee reported on the excellent membership meeting held at The Castleton on the evening of November 17.

A further discussion of an airport for New Castle was held and efforts along this line will be continued.

In the absence of President David S. Pyle, Vice President Ira M. Ramsey presided. Directors present were O. P. Brown, L. G. Genkinger, J. B. Foster, T. H. Hartman, W. J. Offutt, Fred L. Rentz, Ira M. Ramsey and A. C. Hoyt.

Local Stockmen Back From Chicago Fair

Thos. Cooper And Everett Moore Make Report Of Big Exposition

Thomas Cooper and Everett Moore well known stockmen of near Harlansburg returned this morning from the International Livestock Fair at Chicago and report it one of the best they ever saw or heard of.

They were especially interested in the International grand champion steer, California Stamp, exhibited by the University of California which cattlemen almost without exception said was the best steer they had ever seen and that was what the judge said as it was led out.

This steer which was fed by Alex McDonald of the university was cross bred of Shorthorn and Angus and weighed 1070 and was sold at auction at $2.35 per pound to a prominent hotel in Chicago. This would net the owner a neat sum of $2514.50

The grand champion car-load lot was won by E. P. Hall of Indiana State. His steers average 1068 and the 16 head of Angus bred were sold for $45.50 per cwt. which would be $485.94 per head.

Mr. Cooper says that the horse show was bigger and better than they have had for years and that many fine animals exchanged hands for very fancy prices.

The weather for the fair was ideal said Mr. Cooper. There was no need of an overcoat or umbrellas and the whole affair was very enjoyable.

Banks Distribute Christmas Funds

Distribution of the $361,000, which has been saved by the citizens of New Castle through Christmas savings funds, sponsored by the different banks of the city, was begun today by some of the banks.

It is expected that three or four days will elapse before all of the money is given out by the tellers of the various banks.

GUARDIAN APPOINTED.

The People's Savings and Trust company was appointed guardian by Judge Hildebrand today for Anna Halockna, minor child of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Halockna, both deceased.

Finding a burglar in his bedroom, Rev. William W. Anderson, parish minister of Bearsden, Scotland captured the man and turned him over to the police.

State National Guardsmen Open Annual Session

Scranton Host To Annual Convention Of Pennsylvania National Guards

(International News Service)

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 2.—With Brig. Gen. Edward Martin, Adjt. Gen Frank W. Beary and Gen. William G. Price, Jr., of the 28th division, present, together with a number of national military officers the annual convention of the Pennsylvania National Guard association opened a two-day session here today.

Col. Clarence J. Smith, president of the association is presiding.

The guardsmen numbering 200, were officially welcomed by Thomas Davies, secretary to Mayor E. B. Jermyn and Brig. Gen. Martin who is state auditor general, made the response. Papers on various military subjects were then read and discussed.

During the convention a resolution urging Gov. John S. Fisher to secure a permanent summer training camp for the entire guard division will be adopted by the delegates according to indications.

The association is dissatisfied with the present arrangement which sends part of the guard to Mt. Gretna for training.

Contractor Leaves Alley Impassable

Ailey Charges That Dirt Hauled To Alley Is Responsible

Attorney Mont Ailey, representing Robert Getting, 1019 Adams street, today appeared before council in formal session at city hall and complained that a contractor in building a sewer had hauled fireclay and dirt into an alley adjoining the property and not only put the alley in an impassible condition but water is now flowing into the cellar of Getting's property. Council referred the complaint to City Engineer Miller and City Attorney Robert White.

During his statement to council, Attorney Ailey told council that Mr. Gettings, trying to operate his auto through the alley had stripped the differential and had to pay fifty some dollars to have the automobile repaired. Formerly the alley was in good condition.

When The Thermometer Hits Zero

Motordom turns to Oak Motor Oil for it puts June in the crankcase. Even at 30° below zero when other oils are stiff as rubber or hard as ice, Oak flows freely, lubricating every part and bearing. No frozen motors or run down batteries with Oak—only June starting and June service.

No Carbon

This marvelous oil whose performance has amazed oil experts everywhere does not form carbon. It burns cleanly, preventing sticky valves and many repair bills. It lubricates thoroghly, for its viscosity (or "body") is greater than that of the heaviest of oils under summer heat.

Try a crankcase of it today. Many of your troubles will be over. Find out from your motor what oil experts learned from rigid tests against all other oils.

A peppy, smooth running car awaits when you fill its crankcase with Oak.

River Highest Since Great Flood Of 1913

Shenango river with a stage of 9½ feet has reached near flood stage and is the highest it has been since the big flood of March 1913 when it overflowed the banks, according to J. L Mosley of the City engineer's office. The river is still rising slowly.

Mr. Mosley says that the flood stage is considered around 10 feet but that it would need to rise at least 7 or 8 feet more before it would reach the stage it did in 1913. In most places it seems to be considerable below the top of the banks and in the city would need to rise considerable before any overflow is possible.

It is not likely that it will rise much more for although the heavy rains here and farther up the valley have saturated the ground and filled each brook and swamp to the limit, the cold weather of the last few hours will help to stop the immediate flow into the streams.

Scanlon Complains To City Council About Sewer Leak

M. J. Scanlon complained to members of the city council this morning that his property on Montgomery avenue, the former Simpson homestead, is becoming the dumping ground of refuse and fecal matter escaping from the main sanitary sewer of the city to the sewage disposal plant.

According to Mr. Scanlon, this stuff from the sewer has created an ill-smelling and unsanitary pool of water of considerable size in his property and is destroying the value of a considerable amount of sand and other materials stored there.

Mr. Scanlon states that the main sewer is leaking at all the joints, which apparently were not put together in the right manner, and also running out of the top of the manholes, because of the high water conditions in the river.

Shoes And Clothes For Children Need Says Mission Head

"The need in New Castle at the present time, or at least the requests that are coming to us are for shoes and clothes for children," declared E. J. Berquist, superintendent of the City Rescue Mission this morning. "We had many requests of late and understand the other organizations that do similar work, have had many requests also. We have been unable to supply all cases that have come to us for attention and at present our stock of children's shoes and clothing is about exhausted."

Mr. Berquist gives this information with the request to friends of the charitable organizations, if they have any clothes they do not need, especially clothing and shoes for children, now is the time it is most needed and will do the most good. If you have such clothing if you call the City Rescue Mission it will be called for. If you can just put it in your car and leave it at the Mission where there is always someone in charge. "Food and money can always be used," stated Mr. Berquist, for calls are numerous at this time, but clothing in particular is wanted.

Two Paroles Are Granted By Court

Markco Perfecto and Charles E. Rigby were paroled by Judge Hildebrand this morning, upon the payment of fine and costs. Perfecto was sentenced one year to the Allegheny County workhouse and assessed a fine of $500 and costs on a liquor charge, with the understanding that a petition for parole would be entertained at the end of five months upon the payment of the fine and costs.

Rigby, on a liquor charge, was fined $500 and costs and given six months to the county jail, with the understanding that a petition for parole would be entertained at the end of two months, provided the fine and costs were paid, which was done.

Over Six Millions Remain For State Federal Aid Roads

By GEORGE H. MANNING.
(Washington Correspondent of the News.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 2.—The state of Pennsylvania had a balance of $6,066,283.78 unexpended funds to its credit in the federal-aid road fund at the close of the last fiscal year, according to the annual report submitted by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads to the Secretary of Agriculture.

Progress made in Pennsylvania during the year and the results of the 11 years of Federal-aid road construction in the state are decribed by Mr. MacDonald in the following summary:

"The federal-aid highway system includes 4,602.7 miles of which 1,639.5 miles have been improved with federal aid. Of the improved mileage 204.3 miles were added during the year. At the close of the year 217.9 miles were under construction and 64.2 miles were approved.

"The mileage improved with federal aid consists of 89.7 miles of graded and drained earth roads, 7.8 miles of bituminous macadam, 101.2 miles of bituminous concrete, 1,414.2 miles of Portland cement concrete and 26.4 miles of brick.

"The total cost of all federal-aid roads completed was $83,038,333.31, of which the federal share was $27,819,175.23. The disbursement of federal funds to the state was $3,180,313.25. This, added to the disbursements made during previous years and subtracted from the state's total apportionment of $34,674,516 leaves a balance of $6,066,283.78 unexpended funds to the credit of the state."

The federal-aid projects completed in the United States during the fiscal year increased the mileage of improved roads in the federal-aid highway system by 8,306.9 miles, bringing the total length of roads improved with federal assistance up to 64,209.7 miles.

At the close of the year construction was in progress on 10,103 miles and projects involving the improvement of 2,395.6 miles additional had been approved.

The federal-aid highway system now includes 185,772.2 miles of road selected by the constituted state and federal highway officials as of primay importance of the accommodation of interstate highway traffic.

The total cost of the 8,306.9 miles of original construction and the 1,376 miles of state construction completed during the year was $182,770,089.53, of which the federal government paid $81,330,357.82 or 44.5 per cent and the states the balance.

Five Officers In West Virginia On Trial For Murder

Justice Of Peace And Four Others Face Trial For Killing Of Trio

(International News Service)

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Dec. 2.—Trial of Elijah Wellman, justice of the peace; his three sons, Noah, Troy and Hugh, and Willie Dingess, a relative, all jointly charged with the death of Willie Conn, Willie Hampton and John Conn at Dingess, near here, last May, opened today in the Mingo county circuit court here before Judge R. D. Bailey.

The jury was empanelled early today and the prosecution began its side of the case before noon.

The story of a typical mountain feud, which culminated in the alleged murder of three men, will be told from the witness stand.

Elijah Wellman, it was stated, will claim that he tried to serve warrants on the three men and that they drew guns on him and his three sons and Willie Dingess, who, it was claimed, were deputized to aid him.

The state will introduce witnesses whose testimony is expected to show that Noah, Troy and Hugh Wellman and Willie Dingess were not duly sworn in as officers.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

In the doorway of one of the furniture stores stood a man—or rather, he leaned up against the jamb. Dressed in the roughest of clothing he was, overall coat and jacket, leaning up against the door. And fast asleep. None of the customers who passed in or out molested him. No, they looked at him rather pityingly, and walked on.

Winter has come to New Castle. No longer do the old men loiter about the East Washington street bridge of an evening, talking of this and of that. With coat collars turned up they hurry on, hardly pausing to nod to a man who was once a crony.

We have heard of a man who stopped his car in front of the dummy policeman at New Wilmington and waited ten minutes or more for the light to change before he realized that it didn't change at all.

VIGNETTES — Pre-Christmas crowds are already beginning to collect in the down town stores.....A woman wheeling a perambulator down Washington street with a small boy clinging to each arm.....The hot stove league at the city tool house on Croton avenue.....Where an old man sits in a corner and expounds Nietzsche and Huxley to all and sundry.....Elevator boys who call themselves "aviators".....And policemen selling tickets for the annual Police Ball.....The West Washington street bridge at midnight.....Flares from the steel mills.....Smoke..... And back to the city room, where nine reporters are clamped to typewriters, grinding out words..... words.....

Almost at a flood stage was the Neshannock yesterday. Rocks which stood out so bare and ugly a few days ago were completely covered with a brown, swirling torrent.

A branch library is being contemplated for the East Side. And why not one for the South Side also? Nothing, it seems, is more worthy of the support of New Castle than the branch library scheme.

What with the announcement of new lights to be placed on Mercer street, between North and Falls streets, it will be one of the best lighted thoroughfares in the city.

Hallway In Home To Be Fireproofed

Crawford-Oakridge Home To Be Repaired And Made Ready For Opening

That the members of the New Castle Quota club wish to express sincere appreciation to all of the citizens of New Castle who have offered help to Crawford-Oakridge, home for girls, which recently figured in a fire, was the statement made this morning by Mrs. Elizabeth J. White, president of the board of directors of Crawford-Oakridge.

Mrs. White also states that the club is extremely grateful to the members of the city fire departments who answered the alarm so quickly, because the home is located in the county, and city firemen do not have to answer county calls.

At the time of the fire, several girls had made application for admittance to the home, but, obviously they could not be received. However, there is room at the home now for one or two girls to stay with the matron.

Members of the Quota plan to redecorate the entire interior of the home, as well as repair what damage the fire has done. It is also announced that the hallway will be fireproofed and the furnace lowered, so as to prevent another such fire.

Because he thinks that their cause is worthy and has given monetary aid Mrs. White wishes to thank D. M. Clark of Mt. Jackson, a Civil war veteran.

THE MOST IS YET TO COME

In 1840 a certain man wrote to a congressman and suggested that the patent office be abolished. For, said he, everything that science and ingenuity can devise has already been invented, and the government is maintaining a needless expense. And yet, with the exception of the steam engine, most of the inventions upon which our amazing industrial civilization rests have been devised since that time. These sources of our astonishment have been brought into being in less than 100 years. The next 100 years will see greater marvels. Be sure of that.

HERE'S A PROBLEM

The most important development of the next 100 years ought not to be the devising of new inventions. There is something more immediate and more important to do than that. The big problem is to develop the judgment and the moral courage necessary to make the right adjustment to this complicated civilization. We have these amazing products of man's ingenuity. The next thing is to know how to make decent use of them.

THE PRISON

When St. Francis of Assisi lay on his death bed, and the end was very near, he repeated a Psalm. As he reached the closing words, "bring my soul out of prison," he died. The body is a prison in which the real man or the real woman passes a few years. Perhaps the prison may crumble and decay, but the prisoner can pass out into the freer air.

LITTLE FUSS

The earth, weighing 4643 trillions of tons, moves at the rate of 1100 miles per minute, at a distance of 93 million miles from the sun, in a path of 600 million miles. The earth does this without ruffing a feather or disturbing a grain of dust. Little man does all the feather ruffing and the dust throwing. The efficiency and workability of the universe is beyond little man's comprehension.

READ THE BIBLE

Victor Hugo named the old prophet Isaiah as one of the six greatest literary men of all times. He can still be found in the world's best seller, which is the Bible. Another Chicago Building Bombed

Bombing Follows Close On Heels Of Meeting Of Police Officials

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Less than ten minutes after Chief of Police Michael Hughes had adjourned a meeting of his police captains, at which he told them the "gangster bombing disgrace" had gone far enough and must stop, bomb number eleven in the series that has marked the progress of the latest gang war, was exploded. It damaged a two-story building on West Madison street, said to be headquarters for the Berthsche-Zuta-Skidmore faction.

The meeting of police captains had been called, it was understood, at the instigation of Mayor William Hale Thompson, who is said to be enraged over the widespread publicity given "Chicago's bloody gang war." The mayor characterized newspaper accounts as grossly exaggerated.

Ben Franklin Hi-Y Boys Meet

In charge of Walter Sunderland of the Ben Franklin faculty and John C. Leonard, boys' secretary, of the Y. M. C. A., the Ben Franklin Junior Hi-Y Club met Thursday evening at the Y where they discussed the pioneers of today.

After the devotionals and business meeting, the boys had a swim in the pool.

Arrangements were made to have a hamburg fry at the next meeting, December 8th, and it was decided to change the time of the meeting to six o'clock instead of 7.30.

River Captain, Critically Ill, Reweds First Wife After 20 Years

By MADELIN LEOF
Staff Writer for Central Press and New Castle News.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 2.—A bridegroom too weak to be photographed, a bride too worried about her bridegroom's health to plan her nuptial costume, a minister 80 years old, and a doctor who had attended and watched over the pair for many years, formed a strange bridal party here.

The bridegroom was Captain John R. Keen, 69, one-time ferryboat pilot on the boats that ply their way steadily and slowly back and forth between Camden and Philadelphia. On his wedding day he was near death, with pneumonia, but today he looks a little stronger as his loving wife carefully arranges his pillows.

Twenty years ago Captain Keen's wife, Emma, then 34, divorced him on grounds of incompatibility, and she, a few years later, remarried. This time, her spouse was Harry Halpert. Three years after her second marriage Mrs. Halpert was left a widow.

The other day Mrs. Halpert heard that Captain Keen was very ill. He had retired from piloting. She went to see him. The old affection was rekindled. Emma Halpert asked Captain Keen to go to her spacious three-story house, where she would care for him.

He accepted her offer. She advised calling a doctor, for Captain Keen looked very ill. When Dr. J. P. Brennan, their old friend, arrived, he said Captain Keen was ill with pneumonia and that he considered the patient's condition serious, because of his age.

Captain Keen understood. He looked up from his bed and said: "Before it is to late, I want to rewed Emma. I want to be able to call her my wife again. I can die happy then."

Dr. Brennan thought his patient was strong enough. Mrs. Halpert rushed to Lewis Lee, the chief clerk of Camden, and obtained an emergency license. Rev. Charles Bowden remarried the happy couple in the presence of only two witnesses.

Captain Keen rose from his pillows, embraced his refound Emma, and said: "I have you again, and now there is something to live for."

He now is able to sit up on a couch in his wife's living room and look out of the window, from which he can watch the river traffic he once knew so well.

Report Hundreds Of Deer Killed On Opening Day

Estimate About 235 Bucks Killed By Thousands Of Hunters On Thursday

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—Deer hunters had a good day in western Pennsylvania yesterday, the opening day of the big game hunting season in the Keystone State, with a total known kill of 235 bucks, a survey by International News Service showed today.

At least 67 of the hundreds of hunters who stalked big game in the Laurel Ridge section of Greensburg were successful, Game Protector W. A. Wright of Westmoreland county declared. In Fayette county 30 deer were bagged. Three of the animals were brought home by as many nimrods in Butler county.

It is estimated that 100 bucks were killed in Centre county mountains, and it is predicted that the number may reach 200.

Around the wooded section of Johnstown reports of the first day's killing a total of 35 bucks being bagged.

This survey does not include the record of more than 15,000 hunters seeking big game in what is considered the best game hunting area in the country, around Clearfield and DuBois. It is believed the kill on the opener will total many hundreds.

Men Leave Hats At City Library

Other Articles Of Wearing Apparel Also Held For Claimants

With the coming of cold weather, the librarian at the New Castle Public Library thinks that the men who left their hats in the building a short time ago can profitably use them, and they may be obtained at the desk. It is pointed out that the hats can be kept only a short time, after which they will either be thrown or given away.

But hats are not the only things which are left in the library. Combs and compacts, gloves and baby's socks, pencils and umbrellas—all are found in the reading rooms. And, although an honest effort is made to return them to their owners, yet, in most cases, they remain uncalled for.

North Street Pupils Visit Local Plants

On Thursday forenoon a group of 16 pupils from grade 8A1 of the North Street Junior high school made a visit to the Reick-McJunkin Dairy Company's plant and viewed how milk was pasturized and bottled and ice cream was made.

This afternoon 20 boys from the 9A3 class visited the New Castle Mining and Clay Products Company. These classes were accompanied on these inspection trips by the counselor of the school and the visits are made as a part of the vocational guidance of the pupils.

KOLSTER RADIO

The store with Kolster sets has the best interests of your radio dollars in mind.

ONE ON THE COLONEL

A soldier went to his colonel and asked for leave to go home to help his wife with her spring cleaning.

"I don't like to refuse you," said the colonel, "but I've just received a letter from your wife saying that you are no use around the house."

The soldier saluted and turned to go. At the door he stopped, turned and remarked:

"Colonel, there are two persons in this regiment who handle the truth loosely, and I'm one of them. I'm not married."

Feminism Will Cut Figure At Havana Meeting

Pan-American Conference To Discuss Rights And Privileges Of Women

Southern Countries May Turn To Full Suffrage For Gentle Sex

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Feminism will have its day at the Sixth Pan-American Conference in Havana, Cuba, this winter when the delegates take under consideration various legislative measures for extending to women the same civil rights as those enjoyed by men.

Many of the proposals to be discussed were first put forward at the International Feminist Congress at Buenos Aires in 1910, the Pan-American Conferences of Women at Baltimore in 1922 and here in 1925, and at the Inter-American Congress of Women at Panama in June, 1926.

Speaking generally, married women in American countries are under the complete control of their husbands. The woman owes obedience to her husband, must live with him and follow him wherever he may locate his residence. She also assumes the nationality of her husband and, excepting in Argentina, Cuba, Peru and the five Central American countries, she cannot engage in commerce, industry or a profession, or appear in court without permission of her husband.

Rights Of Women

An unmarried woman who has reached her majority, has, however, the same civil capacity as a man, but with certain limitations. For example the adult unmarried woman cannot act as an executrix, trustee, member of a family council, or appear as a witness to wills.

Omitting Argentina, Bolivia, Peru and Cuba, the possessions of the married woman are answerable for the debts of her husband, and in all Latin countries the debts of the man, including those contracted before marriage, are shared jointly by himself and his wife.

The father exercises parental authority during the marriage, directs the education of the children, is permited to use his own methods of punishing them for wrong-doing and enjoys the income from their personal property. Only in Guatemala and Honduras do the laws require that he consult with the mother in matters relating to the children.

Discusses Civil Rights

Advance reports received at the Pan-American Union here indicate that the discussion may revolve about the civil rights law adopted in Argentina on August 25, 1925. This statue gives to unmarried, divorced or widowed women the same civil rights as those enjoyed by men of legal age. Married women, under Argentine law, do not need the authorization of their husbands or of the authorities to engage in business, industry or a profession, to dispose of their income or to dispose of property acquired before marrige.

Married women are also permitted to appear in court without special authorization and have complete authority over the actions and possessions of children they may have had by former marriage. The property belonging to either the husband or the wife is not answerable for the payment of debts contracted by the other, except when the debts were contracted for the maintenance of the home, education of the children, or for the preservation of the property held jointly by both.

Famous London Fogs Show Improvement

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—The famous London fogs are losing their malignity.

So says Frederick W. Goodenough, chairman of the British Commercial Gas Association, who thinks that much of the improvement is due to the more general use of gas in London households.

Goodenough estimates that $200,000,000 are lost annually through avoidable waste of fuel, damage to property, and transport delay caused by fogs.

The truth hurts, and so would you if you were stretched as much.

Fat Is Now A Folly

Look about you—note how slenderness prevails. Excess fat is the exception now. You must realize that some great factor has helped to bring this change.

That factor is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. It is a substance which, in the body, turns food into fuel and energy rather than into fat. Marmola supplies it to those who have too little.

Medical science discovered this factor over two decades ago. For over 20 years people have used it in Marmola and told others the results. Millions of boxes have been employed in fighting excess fat. Now almost everybody has slender friends who can tell what Marmola did.

No abnormal exercise or diet is required, though moderation aids results. Simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. Then cease, unless you start to gain again.

Try Marmola, in justice to yourself. Watch its results in new beauty, new health and vitality. You cannot afford to stay fat when natural reduction has become so easy. The complete formula is stated in every box, also the reasons for results, to banish any fear of harm. Order now, before you forget it, and you will always be glad that you read this.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Denver Will Have Club For Widows

(International News Service)

DENVER, Dec. 2.—With the vacating of the palatial Verner Z. Reed mansion in the near future Denver widows may realize a dream of a widow's club designed for the enjoyment of ladies who have leisure and wealth but find their social activities handicapped because of lack of contact with women of their own stations.

Members of a group of local women high in Denver society circles have been harboring the idea of such a club for some time. They sometimes find their situation awkward and embarrassing when arrangements must be made for escorts to accompany them to entertainments, concerts and other social functions.

Bridge tables could be made up without preliminary telephone calls and extensive planning, luncheons could be enjoyed in the companionship of tehir own sex with the freedom of activity as regards the things they want to do.

Enthusiasm has gripped leaders in the suggested movement since the Verner Z. Reed home has been mentioned its large drawing room with sun porch adjoining, its spacious dining room with pantries and kitchens suited to the serving of large numbers a ball room and swimming pool are features of the modern castle located in the heart of the exclusive residential district that would make it an ideal club house.

The Reed home will be vacated by Mrs. Reed upon the completion of her new home in Park Lane.

Daily air-liners exclusively for second class passengers now operate between London and Paris.

Tourists Increase As Roads Improve In Western States

(International News Service)

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 2.—The great American tourist population, which has been consistently increasing each year with vastly improved roads and highways throughout the country, soon will be afforded overnight headquarters as elaborate as their own homes, if not a great deal more so. A company has been incorporated here for $25,000,000, for the development of a chain of tourist cabins to be built in every sizeable town in the United States. Known as the A. B. A. Tourist Cabin corporation, the company is planning one of the most extensive developments of this nature ever attempted.

The tourist cabins will be of modern glazed tile, erected within miniature parks, with especial attention being directed to the surroundings.

J. N. Tincher, former representative in congress from the seventh district; J. C. O. Morse, Hutchinson, Kas., and Curtis C. Alexander, Wichita, Kansas, are promoting the enterprise.

"It is our intention," Tincher said, "to build and maintain these cabins in such manner that they will become as famous among motorists as Harvey houses are to western railroad travelers."

Construction of the first units of the chain has been begun at Hutchinson, Kansas.

Harem Caravan For King Of Arabia Is Shipped From London

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—A wonderful motor harem has just glided through the streets of London enroute for the desert.

This harem, a marvelous motor caravan, has just been completed at the Star works, and was on its way to Arabia.

The man who has helped the King of Arabia to design his new fleet of cars is Stuart Marr, who served in Arabia under Colonel Lawrence.

"The car will carry the Royal wives across the desert at 55 miles an hour," says Marr. "The King is constantly making long journeys from Mecca to Medina and across to the Persian Gulf. He naturally wants his wives to go with him. But they must never be seen by men, and the King is very strict about it.

"So these cars—there are two of them—were made to carry his 24 wives from place to place. There are no windows, light being admitted through opague glass in the roof. The 12 wives are locked in, and an electric fan keeps them cool—more or less. They may have to travel as much as 1100 miles in there. They sit six aside, on the pile of carpet which is fixed to the floor of the car.

"Two other cars of the same size are open. They are for the King's guard of 50 warriors. Armed to the teeth, these picked fighting men will travel with the King and his wives, and woe betide anyone who gets in the way.

"There are also four touring cars for the King and his suite. These will do 65 miles an hour.

"The fleet of eight cars has cost $55,000. Each car is covered in polished aluminum. "Enormous tires, costing $375 a set, were specially made to bear the load in the rough desert."

May Speed Up Divorce Mills

TUSCON, Ariz., Dec. 2.—The divorce mills of the state of Sonora, Mexico, may be geared up to higher speed by the Sonora legislature in session at Hermosillo, in the opinion of Henry V. Anaya, a Mexico City attorney, who is visiting his family here.

Anaya said the Sonora legislature was considering the adoption of a statue which would confirm with the regulations now existing in the state of Cuernevac, Morelos and Mexico, where a final decree may be obtained in 20 days.

The proposed law, Anaya said, provides for the service of the complaint on the defendant either by registered mail or by publication in Mexican newspapers.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

4,000,000 Slaves In World Mostly Under Great Britain Rule

(International News Service)

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Despite the tremendous progress which has been made in the advancement of civilization, recent statistics show that there are more than 4,000,000 slaves in the world at the present time.

And England, who was the first to import slaves to America, has the majority of these under her domination. However, intensive work is being done in London to abolish this, and results are proving satisfactory.

Speaking before a protest meeting, Lady Simon, famous for her work in urging the abolition of this form of making man work, pointed out that it could only end in racial wars.

"Everyone knows slavery is a black stain on the record of humanity. In Jamacia the slaves were set free nearly 100 years ago. Their descendants are happy, dignified, peasant proprietors of farms, growing fruit for the markets." Look at the progress of the American colored people have made since their emancipation.

Our success in setting free 200,000 slaves in Sierra Leone, Africa, proves that public opinion is all powerful."

Kansas Governor Tours State By Use Of Airplane

The tour will be made in a Travel-Air monoplane, the Governor having accepted the offer of the company and pilot. The Travel-Air Corp., is a Kansas concern, with factory here.

California's Employes Object To Retirement On Old Age Pensions

(International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 2.—California's state employes are going to demand that they have the right to stay in harness. They will refuse to accept a proposed pension on the mere grounds of old age, recognizing only physical inability as grounds for retirement.

Captained by Jack Stafford, who has been in the state's employ for 34 years, 8,000 civil service workers throughout the state are mustering their forces to combat a newly proposed plan to pension state employees after compulsory retirement at a fixed age.

32 degrees colder

than a cake of ice, yet easily started

with this marvelous new winter medium oil

THIS winter will bring you many days when icy coldness is ready to thwart your starter's good intentions. Are you prepared for them? There are two ways: You can use light, thin oil . . . and sacrifice adequate lubrication. Or, you can profit from the most remarkable motor oil development of the year and have easy starting and efficient lubrication—both!

For the first time in automotive and refining history, you can obtain a medium-bodied oil as easy starting as any light, thin oil: Atlantic Winter Medium. And being a paraffine base oil, there is no question as to its capacity to withstand the most severe onslaughts of friction.

Ordinary paraffine base oils have one shortcoming: They thicken at low temperature. But by new Atlantic processes the waxy substances which cause this tendency are removed. Cold does not handicap Atlantic Winter Medium; motor heat does not break down its body.

Use Atlantic Winter Medium—you'll spare yourself both the annoyance of hard starting and the danger of insufficient motor lubrication.

Atlantic 600 Transmission Oil
—a companion for Atlantic Winter Medium

A lubricant for transmissions and differentials that is quite as remarkable as Atlantic Winter Medium is for motors. The extraordinary fluidity at zero of Atlantic 600 Transmission Oil, combined with its stability of "body," makes it an ideal lubricant at any weather temperature. Gears shift easily on coldest days.

New Gland Extract May Be Important To World As Insulin

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, Dec. 2.—Professor J. M. Rogoff of Western Reserve University has succeeded in preparing a glandular extract in crude form which medical authorities believe may prove, when purified, to be as important to the world as insulin. Prof. Rogoff is now carrying on the work of purifying the extract.

The extract, after purification, will constitute a treatment for Addison's disease and many other diseases, in which the function of the adrenal glands is impaired, it is believed. Addison's disease has been regarded as incurable. It is caused by failure of the adrenals to function properly.

Prof. Rogoff has been experimenting for 12 years in connection with the extract, which comes from the cortex, or outer layer of the adrenals, two small, flattened glands situated in front of the upper end of each kidney.

"The adrenal consists of an inner portion surrounded by an outer layer called the cortex," Prof. Rogoff explained when questioned regarding his work. "An extract known as adrenalin has been obtained in the past from this inner portion and used with success for various treatments by the medical profession. It was believed that adrenalin was the chief secretion of the adrenal. We have discovered, through our experiments, that adrenalin is not important to life, but that the indispensable secretion is one given out by the cortex."

Prof. Rogoff claims that animals from which all of the adrenals except a small proportion of the cortex have been removed, continue to live and apparently show no ill effects. However, in the case of the total removal of the cortex, death follows within one or two weeks, he said.

Now It's The Dignity Thief!

And These Bell-Bottomed Trousers Serve His Purpose Well, Too

"Hands up" in the polite bandit circles has given way to "Pants Off!"

This fashion note (or is it purely a question of etiquette?) comes from the chief centers of hold-ups—New York and Chicago.

Styles or bagginess of trousers make little difference. Occasionally, shoes are shoed-off, too—but only when the trousers do not slip over them easily.

Modesty prompts the crooks from proclaiming the arbiter of this new fashion. It is said that the mode comes from abroad. In war days, enemy prisoners, when captured in too great numbers for easy handling, were stripped of belts and buttons. They were then too busy holding their garments to try any escape.

Whatever the origin, the new form discounts man's natural modesty.

In New York, the vogue seems to be practiced mostly in hold-ups of a certain chain of shoe stores. It seems to work very well. For the poor clerks never move until a barrel or another pair of pants happen along.

In Chicago, special squads have been assigned to the capture of the bandits who rob the victims not only of valuables, but dignity, too.

So far the newest technique has been tried only on men.

Roaming Round With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

Hope you saw "Pollyanna" in the senior high school auditorium last night. Splendid piece of dramatic work as the high school students always do, but this colyum is not for the purpose of reviewing the play. Its function today is to talk about one of the stars of the cast.

This star is not a human, it's a dog, "Sport," a neighborhood bum that makes his home in the Sheridan avenue district. Just after dinner last night I got a telephone call from a lady who was a neighbor many years ago over on East Long avenue. Back in those days I owned a dog that was a dog, Rover by name.

He was an impartial dog was Rover, impartial in that he would eat at anybody's back door, and he was a self appointed guardian of all the school children of the district. Mrs. Cole was one of his many friends and because of the similarity between Rover and Sport she wanted to be sure I saw him.

Sportw as a real star and you ought to see him tonight. No self consciousness or stage fright, no Delsartic voice or actions, just a real honest to goodness trouper.

But that isn't all about Sport. Last year he had no license tag and was in grave danger of being shot. The little boys of the Sheridan avenue district chipped in their pennies and nickels and dimes to get their friend a license tag and his life was spared.

There's one favor I would like to ask of these youngsters of the Sheridan avenue district. When the time comes to buy Sport another tag—and it will be here within a month—will they please allow me to put in part of it? Any part from a nickel to the whole thing. Just in memory of old Rover, the finest dog that ever roamed the east side.

The latest piece of useless endeavor is the coffee drinking championship which a number of goofs over the country are claiming. Being the champion coffee drinker is somewhat akin to being the champion whittler of Stubb's Corners. It doesn't mean a thing.

College or high school hero worship passes quickly. Up in the balcony last night was a group of lads whose names were emblazoned across the papers a few weeks ago, and whose ears were dimmed with the cheering of the fans. Last night they were just spectators while the other heroes and heroines got the adulation. Art is long and time is fleeting.

CHILDREN'S DEPARTMENT OF LIBRARY SHOWS GAIN

On top of the fact that the library has increased its circulation for the month of November some 3,000 volumes, comes the statement that the children's department of the library gave out 7,929 volumes during the month, or over 2,000 more than were given out by the adult department. The daily average circulation for the entire library during the month was 550 volumes.

The new junior adult department, created the latter part of September, states Miss Helen Minick, librarian of the children's department, was in a large measure responsible for the increase in circulation, there having been over 1,800 books withdrawn from it.

"Although we feel that we are reaching only a very few of the children," says Miss Minick, "yet when one considers how far we are from the East Side, which seems to be the center of population of the city, one can see reasons. In the future, though, when our plans are completed and a branch is established on the East Side, I expect to see the circulation take a very big leap.

"We are not satisfied, yet we are pleased to find that the juvenile gain in November 1927, over November, 1926, was some 38 per cent."

Heavy Casualty List Reported First Day Among Deer Hunters

Game Commission Estimates Hundreds Of Deer Killed On Opening Day Of Season

Western Pennsylvania Reports Half Dozen Casualties In First Few Hours

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 2. — Reports to the state game commission today indicated that the kill of the first day of the deer hunting season was exceedingly large.

While it will be at least a day or two before the commission receives the reports of its wardens on the official number of deer brought down, unofficial reports showed that many hunters were successful on the first day.

Likewise, the loss of human life was large. By a queer trick of fate the number of hunters killed in Lycoming county in the first three hours after the season opened almost equalled the game toll. Two men were killed by stray bullets, another was run down and killed by a party of hunters in an automobile and two suffered injuries.

Western Pennsylvania reported a half dozen casualties in different sections where the woods was filled with the red-capped army.

Mifflin county reported that approximately 100 deer were bagged on the opening day. Reports from the Pocono Mountain region indicate that the kill there also was large.

In the anthracite region hundreds of miners abandoned the mines for the day to hunt as the season opened.

House Farm Bloc Is Alarmed Over Committee Plan

Farm Bloc Incensed Over Selection Of Two Opponents To Farm Relief

NEW COMMITTEEMEN CAUSE BIG RIFT

Seek Change In Vote Necessary To Have Bill Taken From Committee

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Alarm spread through the ranks of the House Farm bloc today when it was reported that an effort would be made to fill two vacancies on the agriculture committee with avowed opponents of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

Rep. Elbert S. Brigham, (R) of Vermont and Rep. John D. Clark, (R) of New York were said to be the pair elected by opponents of the McNary-Haugen bill to succeed to committee places vacated by Ex-Rep. Tincher (R) of Kansas and McLaughlin (R) of Nebraska, neither of whom was re-elected.

Apparent Danger.

The danger of the situation immediately became apparent to farm bloc members. A motion to substitute the Curtis-Crisp bill, which is akin to the farm aid plan of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, failed by the margin of one vote in the committee last year.

Since Tincher opposed the McNary-Haugen bill while McLaughlin favored it, their replacement by two avowed opponents of the measure apparently would prevent it from ever reaching the floor of the house.

"We will be satisfied if they select one man for and one against the McNary-Haugen bill, which would leave the committee in the same situation as last year, assuming that all old members will be re-elected," said one farm bloc leader. "But we will fight to the last ditch this plan to 'pack' the committee with enemies of real farm relief."

Western members immediately began to discuss retaliatory measures. A proposal is already being advanced to demand a change in the rules of the house, to provide that a petition signed by 150 members will be sufficient to call any bill from committee. Under present rules such a petition must have signatures of 215 members.

Rep. Oldfield, (D) of Arkansas minority whip, and Rep. Dickinson (R) of Iowa, unofficial leaders of the farm bloc, have been asked to lead the movement.

The new and but partially formulated "Insurgent" movement in the lower branch is the direct outgrowth of the power manifested by New York and Pennsylvania delegations in the committee on committees.

Opposes Estep.

These groups secured a recommendation to place Rep.-Elect Harry Estep (R) of Pennsylvania on the ways and means committee, which handles tariff and tax matters, before he had become a member of the house. Farm bloc leaders fear they can exercise an equally powerful control on the agriculture committee.

Speaker Longworth has announced his opposition to Estep going on the ways and means committee and is said to have joined with other house leaders in an effort to persuade Estep to retire. Rep. Griest (R) of Pennsylvania chairman of the state delegation, declared, however, that he saw no reason why the committee's action should be revoked.

Meanwhile, on the senate side of the capital, the western insurgents have served an "ultimatum" on administration leaders, demanding an opportunity to vote on a farm relief bill embodying McNary-Haugen principles. The Insurgents also demanded a place on the legislative calendar for a bill limiting the use of injunctions against organized labor and for a resolution calling for an investigation of the administration's Latin-American policy.

Sell Seals On Ellwood Streets

Different Plan Being Used In Ellwood City Than New Castle

A complaint has reached Miss Della Glenn, who has charge of the sale of Christmas Tuberculosis seals in Lawrence county that the sale of seals in Ellwood City has been affected by the declaration that none are to be sold on the streets.

As Ellwood City has its own Tuberculosis society and maintains its own nurse, they are entitled to sell seals any way they like. This year the seals in Ellwood City are being sold on the street, and so Miss Glenn wishes the false impression gained by her statement to be corrected.

Civic Committee Plans Collection Of Old Clothing

Plans have been formulated by the recently formed civic committee, made up of representatives of service and patriotic organizations of the city, for a wholesale collection of discarded clothing, shoes and articles that might prove of use to the more unfortunate people of the city.

It is anticipated that the collection of these articles will take place in the next ten days. Four trucks will be needed for the collection of these articles and the committee hopes that local contractors or merchants will find it possible to donate the use of trucks for this purpose. Those willing to assist in this way are requested to notify either Mayor William H. Dunlap or Harold J. Clapie.

The articles collected will be placed in a central storehouse, yet to be secured and women of the churches and affiliated organizations in the civic committee will sort out the articles given for distribution among those, who can use them to an advantage.

Those persons having knowledge of needy cases such as it is desired to assist, will get in touch with the persons already mentioned or with members of the civic committee, so that they may be taken care of.

Children Enjoy First Story Hour

Over 100 children of the graded schools of New Castle heard the tales told at the first of the weekly story hours, held at the New Castle Public Library Thursday afternoon. Miss Helen Minick, librarian of the Children's department, entertained with "The Precious Jade Treasure," and "The King of the Crocodiles".

Catches Fish In Store Basement

When one can fish in his basement, or the basement of the place in which he is employed, things are pretty bad, but when one can also catch fish in the basement, things are even worse.

At the W. J. Offutt company this happened. It seems that the Neshannock had backed water into the basement, and while sloshing about in it, arranging for the water to be pumped out, Charles Horchler saw a little fish, identity unknown. He made a stab for it, and, after many efforts were futile, he cornered the fish and succeeded in capturing it.

Today Mr. Horchler has caged the fish temporarily, in a glass jar, and he is showing it to all and sundry.

When you go back to astonish people of the old home town, they're usually astonished that you have enough money to get back.

No candidate has universal appeal, which merely means that none has found a universal grouch.

Scout Round Up Set For Tonight

Archery And First Aid Contests Open To All Scouts; Held In Carnegie Auditorium

About 200 scouts from the Lawrence County council, Boy Scouts of America, will participate in the annual round up, to be held this evening at 7:30 in the Carnegie auditorium.

The round up will be a check to show how far along the boys are in scoutcraft. Aside from the regulation tests for tenderfeet, second class, and first class scouts, there will be an archery contest and a first aid contest open to all scouts. Mercer county scout officials will be judges at all contests except the first aid, which will be judged by the First Aid team of the local Bell Telephone company.

PECULIAR RAINBOW

A rainbow may sometimes be seen all day long in a cloudless sky in Siberia. It is stated to be due to reflection of the sun on fine particles of snow in the air.

Prohibition may not be an issue but a candidate's unwillingness to tell where he stands makes yellowness an issue.

Growing Children Need Vitamins

It is all important for the welfare of the young child and its normal progress in growth and health—the formation of a strong bone structure, that the body be kept adequately vitamin-nourished.

The handicap that so often hinders the normal progress of children, is a failure to obtain from the daily diet a full quota of essential vitamins, the kind that abound in emulsified cod-liver oil, as in Scott's Emulsion.

To children who are pale, under-weight, inclined to weak, soft bones or rickets, and who evidently are not obtaining the needed vitamins, give emulsified cod-liver oil in the form of

New Light May Banish Dread Of Dense Fog

Tests Concluded By Air Mail Pilots Amazing To Aviation Experts

100-Candle Power Lamp Outshines Great Beacon At Hollywood

By CHARLES C. CARTER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 2.—Fog, the dread of every mariner every motorist and every aviator may become only a menace of memory with the perfection of a powerful, mist-penetrating light invented by W. E. C. Stone, of this city.

Tests concluded by Eldred L. Remelin, Pacific air transport mail pilot, established amazing possibilities for the new light, according to aviation authorities.

Stone's invention intensifies the light ahead of the pilot and minimizes the density of the vapor, enabling the aviator to keep his plane on its course in the thick weather and making safe landing possible. Hitherto, pilots trapped in heavy fog have wandered far from their landing fields and repeatedly have crashed in the dangerous effort to nose down to unknown terra firma.

Tried Experiment

Leaving the air mail field here at midnight in a fog so dense that the 7,500,000 candle power beacon high in the Hollywood hills could not be seen, Remelin held his plane unerringly on a nine-mile course, guided by a 100 candle power light equipped with a ten inch lens.

Repeated experiments, with sensitive instruments recording the results, demonstrated that the new light appears twice as bright through heavy fog as does the huge Hollywood beacon on a clear night. Red and green lights, equipped with the newly-perfected lens, were easily discernible through the fog whereas a 163 foot red beacon of the ordinary type could not be seen.

One of the Stone beacons was lashed to a wooden frame on Palos Verdes Point—and observers at Crystal Pier, Santa Monica, twenty miles distant, saw the light beams flashing through the fog like the rays of a rising sun.

The fog penetrating properties of the new light are said to be due to a mixture and blending of metals whose prismatic particles refract and reflect white rays thrown from the reflector back of the lens, causing intense beams of color to spread over a large area.

Air Pilots Pleased

Air mail pilots who watched the experiments were emphatic in stating that any plane equipped with the new light, and guided to its airport by a beacon similarly equipped, can readily make a safe landing in the thickest weather.

The tests attracted unusual attention among commercial aviators, in view of the recent air mail disaster here, when Pilot Dick Bowman's plane carrying air mail to San Francisco and other northern points crashed in a dense fog above the Newhall Mountains. Bowman saved his life with a sensational 10,000 foot parachute leap through the gray mist, but his plane was shattered to bits and valuable mail was not recovered until two weeks later.

Vienna Organizes Anti-Kissing League

(International News Service)

VIENNA, Dec. 2.—An "Anti-Kiss League" has just been organized in this city, always famous for its beautiful women and gay nights.

It is the result of a vigorous campaign started by the Viennese newspapers in conjunction with hygiene-workers, who are waging war on the kiss. They say that every time two lips meet two other lips, 80,000 microbes are exchanged and that osculation is undoubtedly the cause of a large majority of dangerous diseases.

Navy May Thirst As Honolulu Dry War Stops Island Stills

(International News Service)

HONOLULU, Dec. 2.—On the outcome of the industrial war wagered by Major J. H. Cooper, prohibition director for the territory, will rest the decision whether the U. S. Fleet will have a plentiful supply of spirituous liquors (if desired) when it visits here in spring.

Island moonshiners are busy laying in a stock of distilled liquors against the fleet visit, for there is tradition in the distilling business here and it is a matter of pride among the old timers that their liquor must be "aged" for at least three months before being sold.

Last month Cooper's forces destroyed caches, containing about 500 gallons of liquor, seized eleven large stills and dumped about 3,635 gallons of mash.

But in the meantime, in a deep valley on the island of Hawaii, and on the slopes of Haleakala on Maui, strong silent men are busily engaged in seeing that the ti root is properly baked for distillation and that the corn mash is just right for rendering into the noted "Maui Corn."

On Hawaii, in fact, the cognoscenti may have delivered to their homes neat bottles bearing the label: "Guaranteed pure Corn. Made in Waimea."

And supplies of okolehao, commonly called "oke" are being buried by industrious Japanese, Chinese, Filipinos, and for that matter being buried deeply in order that the wants of the visitors in spring may not be unsatisfied.

But the market price today is going up. Whereas good oke was purchaseable three months ago for $6 a gallon, the activities of the new prohibition chief have raised the ante to $8.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

Joy's Own Child

By Margaret Taylor

HAVE you heard that Neal Darrow is engaged, and to a girl in Buffalo?"

Mrs. Cottle and Mrs. Berriman were enjoying their usual exchange of gossip over the side fence.

Mrs. Berriman looked startled. "In Buffalo? Are you sure?"

"I had it from Julia Darrow. Shouldn't you think his own sister-in-law ought to know?"

"Oh, of course, it must be so."

"They say that Julia made the match," Mrs. Cottle went on. "Her name is Corinne Applethwaite. Pretty name, isn't it? They met last Spring in New York. She's a great friend of Julia's; a regular beauty and very musical. They were engaged by correspondence, and Neal starts for Buffalo tomorrow. The Applethwaites are influential people there and they've secured a fine position for Neal. The young folks are giving him a farewell party tonight."

Mrs. Cottle stopped for breath, and in the interval Mrs. Berriman found her voice.

"But what about Maud Ranger?"

"Maud? Oh, she and Neal have been good friends—that's all. Julia says he wouldn't think of marrying one of the Clayville girls."

"I don't believe many of the Buffalo girls are any prettier or smarter than Maud Ranger," Mrs. Berriman asserted, with a slight show of resentment.

"Maud is pretty and lively and has taking ways, and she knows how to put on her clothes, but the Applethwaites, you know!" A comprehensive wave of Mrs. Cottle's arm indicated that if you knew that family you had all the knowledge you needed.

"I don't know anything about them," Mrs. Berriman answered shortly.

"But I am rather sorry," Mrs. Cottle resumed after a pause, "that Neal has paid so much attention to Maud—sorry on her account."

Mrs. Berriman bridled.

"Maud Ranger isn't going to break her heart for Neal Darrow, or any other young man. Well, this won't do for me. I must go in and set my bread."

The subject of this neighborhood discussion was inspecting her dainty and charming, if somewhat scanty, wardrobe. She had taken down a jade green, with touches of gold embroidery, that harmonized with her brilliant ray-green eyes and coppery-auburn hair.

"No," she decided. "Not this. 'Green is forsaken.' I'll wear my canary voile. Yellow is the color of joy, and I am going to be the life of the party tonight."

She dressed with unusual care, even pilfering a pinch of rouge from a box Estelle had left on their bureau. Until tonight she had disdained all makeup.

"I'll have color enough later on," she thought, "but I mustn't look pale when I go in."

She kept her resolve gallantly. She seemed the soul of innocent gaiety. Not once did her spirit falter. When Neal Darrow said his good-by to her, half laughing, half tender, he smiled down at her.

"You've been wonderful tonight. Maud. I believe you are joy's own child."

Later, in her own room the canary gown hung carefully on two hooks. Estelle's rouge scrubbed vigorously from her cheeks, Maud, wrapped in a gray kimona, under her shaded lamp, sat pale and quiet.

"I made a little song once," she was thinking, "a farewell song for our class day. Miss Twining said it was the kind you could sing. I wonder if I could make one now?"

She took up a writing tablet and toyed with her pen. In half an hour she had written this:

I stifled all regret,
Said to my heart, "Not yet,"
And sought the merry-making.
I wore a mask for you.
I danced the whole night through
Although my heart was breaking.

I danced the whole night through
I smiled and danced with you;
And you my mood mistaking,
You called me "Joy's own child."
You did not know I smiled,
Althought my heart was breaking.

She read the little song through twice, fancying she heard it sung by a sweet soprano voice, and soothed by its simple melody and the solace of self-expression, turned off her light and slept.

The Winter was a trying one for the Rangers. Estelle came home from school in mid-term, and Maud nursed her through a month's illness. Mrs. Ranger fell down the cellar stairs and broke her wrist. Mr. Ranger had business reverses that called for petty and perplexing economics. Fourteen-year-old Harold developed a sudden penchant for dubious companions. Maud rose to each emergency. Always efficient and resourceful, "It's up to you, Maud," she would admonish herself. Perhaps she did not regret being kept away from the village gaieties for a time.

Things began to look better in the Spring. Maud's cousin, Virginia Brent came home from two years' music study abroad. She sang for the Rangers in their little parlor. Music-loving Maud, who never could carry a tune, listened, enraptured.

"Oh, Virgie!" she cried when they were in her room together, "it must be wonderful to have such a gift."

"But you have gifts enough of your own, Maud. Do you remember that fetching little song you wrote for our class day?"

"Yes, and I wrote another last Fall." Maud drew out the folded paper from its hiding place. "Perhaps you could sing it at your recital Wednesday night."

Virginia was scanning the lines and humming softly.

"I certainly can. I have an air that will just fit it. I think it will be effective. But, Maud, how could you write this?"

"Oh, it just came to me. But, Virgie," (Maud took possession of the papers), "before you sing this you must promise me on your honor never to tell anybody who wrote it."

"Why, of course I won't, if you don't wish it.

"You musn't, Virgie."

. . . . . .

Virginia's recital in her home town was a success. Columbia Hall was filled and the audience applauded and encored. But what seemed to touch them most was a simple little encore song entitled, "Because My Heart Was Breaking." Virginia's clear, sweet soprano voice had an unusual capacity for pathos, and the listeners sat hushed and subdued. Maud, sitting between her mother and Harold, felt strangely happy as she listened.

"Well, Virgie did herself proud," Harold said on the way home. "I liked that little short piece about a breaking heart or something," he added, with an apologetic laugh.

"So did I," his father and mother echoed in concert.

"It was kind of silly," Harold wondered, "but wasn't it funny, the way it seemed to get the whole crowd? Didn't you like it, Sis?"

"Oh, yes!" Maud answered. "I loved it."

She was thinking to herself. "Even if my life has been disappointing and I don't have a very good time, I wrote that little song, and so many people cared for it!"

"My wife is always worrying over something!"

"Why, what's the matter now?"

"She is afraid whiskers will be in style when our little boy grows up, so that he won't have a chance to show the pretty little dimple in his chin."

Women may be slaves to fashion. But where is one who desires her freedom?

The Force of Construction

By Monte Darrell

IT was the busiest hour of the busiest day of the week at the Rockdale Times office. Out in the printing room the men were setting type. In the stuffy inner office young Alan Brett was editing the budgets of news which had just come in from Elmwood and North Shares. The whole working force was electrified with that race against time of a paper going to press.

If the editor had frowned a little over his Elmwood correspondent's account of the basket ball game between her local team and the North Shares fellows, he frowned deeper when he read the North Shares correspondent's account of the same game.

"Jealous small town stuff!" he muttered. "Why can't I afford to hire he-men for the jobs, instead of lop-sided girls?"

The point of Alan Brett's deleting blue pencil was poised above one item after the other, but did not strike. Widely as the reports differed from each other in sentiment, the very expressions of personal partisanship gave them a vividness that blended in the astute mind of the young editor. He could just feel that game being played! He could feel himself struggling here and yonder with the ball. He could hear the gasping, cheering, hissing spectators. Strike out those items? And yet he could not print the betrayals of the mistaken loyalty that demands hatred for an opponent.

The young man had come to Rockdale to take charge of the Times with the determination that it should be a constructive force in the community of towns it served. The untrained girls whom he could afford to hire to cover the outlying towns were not to be blamed for their faults. It was up to him! And here was a decision he could not delay. Strike out those items? He must get the copy on to press! The blue pencil streaked across the pages in wide, bold lines.

Then, like a flash, Alan Brett pulled the typewriter to him, and began to pound its keys. The thrill of construction ran through his words. The race against time gave a terseness to his style that made an atmosphere of suspense until he reached a sharp conclusion.

"Set that in a box on the third page," he told the printer. "We must get busy on the local games."

But when the papers began to come from the press, the young editor began to wonder what the result of his action would be. All sorts of reactions reached him from subscribers, and he had commenced to regard them as a part of the week's routine excitements.

Soon he heard Jimmie of Elmwood stop his home-rebuilt flivver at the curb front of the Times office. Jimmie was captain of his basket-ball team, and generally active around his home village. He managed the local delivery of the Times there, and had come for the papers. He watched him through the open door between his sanctorum and the outer office.

Jimmie opened a paper and ran hurriedly through it until he reached the boxed notice of the game in which he had taken part. Spider, captain of the rival North Shares team, came in while he was reading it over the second time. Spider had come on the bus for the Times, which he regularly delivered in his locality. It was weeks since the two boys had spoken cordially.

"Look here, Spide!" cried Jimmie, eagerly. "See the write-up Sade gave us! She told me she put something in about the game."

"Great stuff!" agreed Spider, reading the notice avidly. "But it's Carrie's work. She wrote up the game."

"Carrie couldn't write that!" cried Jimmie of Elmwood.

"Sade sure couldn't!" retorted Spider of North Shares.

Alan Brett felt that quarrel narrowing to blows, and went to the open doorway.

"Hello, old scout!" he greeted. "Both the girls helped me write up the game!"

Jimmie lifted his head proudly.

"You saw how we mean to play, Mr. Brett! Clean for sport!" he said. "Say, Spide, let's schedule another game, and have Mr. Brett over!"

"I'll say we will!" agreed Spider.

"Put your papers down in my car," added Jimmie. "I'll go around home through North Shares and drop you wherever you say is the handiest corner!"

Lots of Luck

By Hazel Courtney

HAVING done all the work that made her little house immaculate in point of neatness, Lydia Cromwell started out to do her marketing, for even when one lives alone, one has to eat. She didn't stop to change her dress of checked gingham for a more suitable street garb, for she was in a hurry; therefore, although her usually smooth hair was what she called "wispy," and her shoes were a bit scuffed from long wearing, she felt that she must go, for in addition to her own work she had promised to make a cake for the sale at the church that night—a cake called for eggs, and there was not one in the house.

She hoped she wouldn't meet anyone she knew, for she realized that she from her usual well-groomed appearance. Before she had gone far she presented a picture very different was stopped by Sally Wardwell, the biggest news vender in the whole town. Sally very promptly planted herself in the middle of the sidewalk, and literally took possession of her victim.

"Well, now, if I ain't glad to meet you, Lyddy Cromwell! Have you heard about John Litchfield being terribly stylish, and handsome as—"

But Lydia Cromwell did not answer. She increased her gait almost to a run as she turned the corner. And, as if Fate itself were against her, when she swung into the next street she collided forcibly with a tall man coming from the other direction, and who was leading a little boy by the hand. The man was John Litchfield, her old sweetheart of ten years ago, and the little boy was his son. He was a blue-eyed little boy who might have been her son, only for that foolish quarrel she and John had had over almost nothing.

For a moment they stared at each other. The man was the first to recover. He held out a hand, saying in an embarrassed tone:

"Why—er—Lydia—this is an unexpected pleasure! I—I—was just thinking of you; and I intended to call on you very soon. I'm glad to see you, and I hope you are glad to see me. So many of our old friends are gone, those that we both used to know, that we ought to appreciate the few who are left. You are not—er—you are living in the same place?"

"Oh, yes, I am still living in my old home, and—and—I'm not married—which was what you were going to ask me, wasn't it?"

John Litchfield reddened and looked down. Lydia Cromwell, aware of her scuffed shoes, also turned red, and tried to hide the offending footwear beneath her skirt. It was an effort not wholly successful, since the shortness of her frock proved an inadequate shield. Then the little boy began to tug impatiently at his companion's hand, and Lydia turned her attention to him with a forced smile.

"He must look like his mother," she said, "for I can't see the slightest resemblance to you. What is his name?"

"The old Litchfield name that so many of us have borne—John. And, as you say, he is like his mother—not a Litchfield feature. He'll probably be thankful for that when he is grown up, for the Litchfields were never noted for their beauty, while his mother's family are all handsome. She is the prettiest of the lot!"

"Yes; Sally Wardwell was just telling me what a handsome woman you—er—had married!"

John Litchfield looked perplexed. His voice revealed his displeasure when he replied:

"I had—had—what? That old gossip told you I was married?"

Lydia fell back a step, hoping that her voice sounded as casual as she tried to make it, as she stammered:

"Why—y, of course. And—and—you are married, aren't you? Isn't this your son?" nodding toward the blue-eyed little fellow smiling up into her face.

"Of course not! I'm not married—never have been, and probably never shall be—since the only girl I ever wanted sent me packing more than 10 years ago! This urchin belongs to my cousin John."

"John—you mean—mean—"

"I mean you, Lydia!" he broke in hotly. "Tell me—is it too late for us to forget that silly quarrel—too late to take the belated happiness that a kind Fate is fairly throwing at our stubborn heads? Tell me, Lydia, is it too late?"

Lydia, unconsciously trying to wipe her tears away with the handle of her market basket, was sobbing faintly:

"Not—t if you want me, John—I—looking as I do!"

"Want you, Lydia! You are all I do want, in this world. Now, Jacky, scamper home and tell your mother that I'm seeing to some very important business. Leg it, son!" And Jacky "legged" it, while Lydia faltered chokily:

"When I met Sally Wardwell, and then ran into you—looking as I do—I thought this was my unlucky day! But now I know it is the luckiest day of my whole life!"

John Litchfield echoed fervently, "I didn't meet Sally Wardwell (thank heaven), but when I met you I recognized my good luck all right!"

Tit for Tat.

"Dear, it is getting cold in here,"
Said ma last night to pa.
"Sh, just a second," he replied,
"I'm getting Omaha."

"I need some buttons on my coat,"
Said dad at half past 10.
"Sh," ma cried, "I've got Pittsburgh,
"Don't bother me again!"

"None of Your Business"

By Parke Whitney

THE train chugged and panted into the low-roofed station. Rain fell dismally, washing the gray stones of the building and settling into clear puddles on the concrete walk. An ancient-looking taxi wheezed expectantly beside the platform as the driver left it and dripped a course of puddles towards me.

"Taxi, sir," he said affirmatively.

I look about, puzzled thoughts centering on the non-appearance of a certain brown-eyed girl, who should have been very evident with a smart roadster. But the landscape remained blank and rainy. Incidentally I was getting very wet, so I dashed for the taxi.

The grim-looking driver followed me, slumped down behind the wheel and turned for directions. "Armstrong, 43 Sheldon place," I informed him. "I expected Miss Armstrong to meet me, but something seems to have delayed her."

A queer expression flashed over his face and he acted as if he were about to speak, then thought better of it and turned to devote himself to getting speed from his hopeless pile of junk. But just before the roar of the engine drowned them, I caught words said to himself, "well, 'tain't none o' my business. He'll find out soon enough."

More puzzled than ever, but preferring not to discuss personal affairs with him, I settled back to endure the bumpy ride. Grace Armstrong, about the loveliest thing in creation, had promised to give me a life claim on that loveliness and this was my first visit to her home.

Naturally, I hoped to make a good impression, so when we arrived, after paying my non-communicative driver, I ran up the steps of a charming stucco bungalow with much more assurance than I felt. An older study of Grace opened the door, and I inwardly breathed easier. Grace could grow to look like the good-looking personality without my ever feeling any regrets. For serene graceful middle age, Grace's mother left nothing to be asked for.

She looked at me and my traveling bag inquiringly, then welcomingly, but some confusion seemed mixed with it.

"I'm sure this is Mr. Clarke," she greeted me. "It's most unfortunate that Grace has been called out of town unexpectedly and won't be able to get back while you are here. Do come in. She was so upset to have to go."

With a brusqueness born of disappointment I asked, "Where's she gone?" Just then, from some unseen region, a rancous voice screeched, "None of your business!"

"Well, I have an important engagement in town tomorrow so I cannot stay the three days we planned," I lied. "I wanted to see Grace, though, so decided to come just the same. Where does her friend live?"

"Oh, about a hundred miles from here," said her mother hastily. "A little town called Severne."

"Is that so? I never heard of it. What's the matter with her friend?"

"Matter, oh— er she was in a bad automobile accident."

I thought a minute. Would you say anyone had been taken seriously ill if she had been smashed up in an accident? I suppose she would be, but the term doesn't seem to fit, somehow.

The doorbell rang, and acting glad to escape from me, Mrs. Armstrong hurried out. A murmur of voices in the hall, something said in hushed undertones, then Grace flew into the room and my arms!

"Mistake, darling," she cried, lifting her rosy face finally to answer my questions. "I got someone else's call and the friend's name happened to be the same. I didn't stop to ask any questions, but rushed off. But I came right back when I found Helen was all right."

"What? Oh, it is, but her middle name is Helen. I always call her that."

A man in love will believe anything, so disdaining to waste any more time in questions or explanations, I just gathered her in again and proceeded to make up for the minutes already lost.

Three days later, my "important engagement" having been settled by phone, I took the train back to town. The conductor was communicative, the train nearly empty, and I had a rear seat. Among other things this came out: "You know, I had a funny one last Saturday. Peach of a red-haired girl came in on this train from that town we've just left. She had a young lawyer with her that I know, and they just made the train in that old taxi back there.

"They had bags, and from scraps of their talk that I heard it looked like an elopement. But when the run was half over the girl began to look queer. I could see him begin to argue with her, but she got up and took her bags, just as we slowed into Weldon. I reminded her that her ticket read through to town, but she tossed her head. 'Never mind, I'm getting off here.' Then, to him, and I heard it all: 'Don't argue any more, Dick, I know now I love Kershaw and I've got to get back before he comes today if I can.'

"'What if you don't?' says he. 'Mother will tell him something till I do. She vowed never to tell him the truth while he was there.'"

My name is Kershaw. Grace had wonderful red hair, and Saturday was the day I arrived in her town. Well. What of it? We're married now and circumstantial evidence is none of my business.

His Other Fault.

Mae—I don't blame you for refusing Donald's proposal. He is so impecunious.

June—Yes, and he hasn't much money, either.

"John, this article says there are sounds that the human ear can't hear."

John (trying to read)—"Yes, my love, but unfortunately none made by the human tongue."

The Spirit of Annabelle

By Claire Wesson

GETTING home from a hiking trip before schedule, only to find the family away and the house empty young Harrison T—, just out of prep school, wired his father for instructions.

"Go to Grandmother's," came the answering wire. Feeling at the moment especially disposed to please—his college preference being under discussion by the family—Harrison went promptly.

Arrived at his destination, a handsome old New England home outside of Boston, Harrison set about exploring it and refreshing the memories of his childhood visits there. He could not see his grandmother just then, the old lady having retired for a nap, the servant told him, and his Uncle Jim and Aunt Julia had gone to visit a neighbor and would not be back for at least an hour. This gave him to wander about at his will, inspecting the uneven hallways and ancient doors, the sunny sitting room in the right wing of the house, and coming to the left wing, the locked door which had always been part of the attraction of the place for him. No one had ever explained that door. But that was when he was a mere boy! Now he surely had the right to find out for himself. And he shrewdly decided to ask no more questions.

The family assembling for tea, the boy found himself sitting as of old upon a little stool at his grandmother's feet. As he looked up at her and answered her questions, he was amazed to notice a soft light which seemed to enfold her. It was a sort of gentle radiance, and was apparently unobserved by the others in the room.

Harrison wondered but said nothing.

Several days and nights passed uneventfully, though he saw the puzzling light again. And then, like a flash, it came to him that there was a mystery about grandmother and that its solution lay on the other side of the locked door.

His investigations in the meantime proved that the key of an upstairs room would unlock the swing-door as well, so he had only to wait till all were asleep to make use of his discovery. And that very evening, after all had retired, he left his room, crossed to the other part of the house, and let himself into the family holy of holies, and look about.

A tiny lamp which he carried shed scarcely enough brightness to see a foot ahead. But as it happened, the night was a moonlit one and a broad shaft of pale light entered the window and lay across the floor. Mainly by means of this sheen he made out the contents of the room. It seemed to be a cozy place. There was a bed with draperies, similar flowered curtains at the windows, and lots of bureaus, and chairs and little tables with flowers on them gave the place a cheerful, inhabited air. After examining things he seated himself upon the curtained bed. As he did so he suddenly stiffened for he saw the glow of light in the window gradually take shape and form itself into the shape of a young woman. It moved down the path of moonlight toward him. So sweet was her face and gentle her appearance that Harrison felt not so much startled as attracted and instinctively he rose to his feet. As he did so he suddenly ceased to see her, and the disappearance was so abrupt as to cause him to cry out aloud. Fortunately, it was his uncle who heard the sound and who came to investigate it. Finding the boy standing motionless, he led him gently down to the friendly sitting room and there, with the other members of the family asleep upstairs, told him this story:

"Years ago, when I was a boy like you, I had a lovely sister named Annabelle. She was as good as she was beautiful and we all adored her. The room you were in tonight was hers. We kept it inviolate and only your grandmother enters it to place flowers in the vases. Well, one day, my little sister disappeared. We searched for her everywhere but could not find her. Years later we had word of her but it was too late, for she was very sick and about to die. The gypsies who had stolen her had left her because she was not able to travel with them. A kind woman found her and sent us word about her, for all this time she had remembered and longed for us. We went and got her and brought her home but she was very weak and lived but a little while. She died in the room you were in and ever since she has visited us every now and then to show us she loves us and to make up for the years when she was away from us, I think. As a child she was very fond of flowers, and sometimes now she comes to us in the odor of flowers; sometimes it is a spot of light which comes and smiles at us; and once in a great while, at night, as she did this time, she comes herself, just as she looked on earth.

It was then that the boy spoke of the radiance he had seen about his grandmother's head.

"That was Annabelle," said the uncle. "She wanted to meet you. It was she, I believe, who drew you to her room.

"What are you drawing, Jim?"

"Why, a dog!"

"But where's its tail?"

"Oh, that's still in the ink bottle!"

"So Lily and Arthur didn't get married, after all! I heard that she was going to marry him to reform him."

"Yes; and he heard it, too!"

Thousands View New Ford Car At Sales Room Today

Its here, folks. Attracting the attention of a set of Siamese twins, with the salesrooms of the Universal Sales Company jammed with thousands of people attempting to get a glimpse of it, the new Ford went on display this morning.

To quote the selling talk of the sideshow ballyhoo, it has everything new but the name. Wheelbase four inches longer, heavier materials, more graceful lines, a gear-shift transmission, chrome nickel trimmings, steel wheels—in short, everything but hot and cold running water, the new Ford is out today, and the eager throngs crowding the salesrooms here are but a replica of the same scene all over the entire United States today.

Lecture and Everything

The demonstration of the new Ford had a combination of the elements of a medicine show and a theophistic lecture. High up on a soap box or a mahogany table or something, Salesmanager Lortz discoursed to the crowd on the merits of the new Ford, quoting technical terms with the facility of a mechanical engineer, while going through the crowd were salesmen with order blanks in their hands, all ready to have one sign on the dotted line.

Its the tip-off on the long-awaited new Ford. For months the newspapers have been filled with conjectures, the barber shops have been filled with hope, and today for the first time, the much advertised, much talked of, much anticipated new Ford is here.

Banker and bootlegger, merchant and mendicant, artist and artisan, all crowded the salesrooms of the Universal Sales Company this morning for a glimpse of the new Ford. All morning long the crowd filed in and out, thousands in number, and this afternoon will probably see the same scene.

But at any rate and whatever, ladies and gentlemen, the new Ford is here, ready for your inspection, and many were the spectators today.

Exoneration To Cost City $5,000

Drains And Sewers Installed For Benefit Of Entire Districts

Solicitor Robert White today reported to council in regular session at the city building that he had caused the city engineer to make schedules of assessments for new paving in Edgewood avenue, Delaware avenue, Mercer street, Williams street, Young street and Lathrop street.

He explained his purpose by adding that "it seems that in construction the engineer found it necessary to put in certain drains and sewers.

"The property-owners claim they were put in , not for the particular benefit of any one street but for the benefit of whole districts.

"It is a close question of fact. Some drains were put in for the benefit of particular streets and some others for adjacent streets.

"As this is a question I have advised the engineer to take out the costs in assessing and recommend those be exonerated when property-owners pay the balance of their assessment."

White said the exoneration would amount to approximately $5,000.

Council adopted a motion authorizing that the items be exonerated.

Stampless Letters Trouble Increases

Postmaster Declares Carelessness Of This Kind Is Increasing

Postmaster Edwin W. Crawford, of the New Castle office reports that there seems to be an epidemic of stampless letters being mailed at the local office the past few weeks and with the Christmas season approaching it is likely to increase.

Postal authorities make an appeal to the public to save themselves inconvenience and the clerks much time by seeing that their letters have the proper amount of stamps before they are posted.

There can seem to be only two reasons why a stamp is not affixed. Either because of carelessness or in order that the receiver may meet the expense of the stamp. The later would be unethical and the former inefficient.

We noticed a man the other day in one of the large buildings dropping a big bundle of letters into the mail chute. Before dropping each letter he glanced at the address and postage to see that it was correct. If each sender of letter would take the trouble to glance at the envelope after sealing to see that the address and postage was correct it would save themselves and others much inconvenience and trouble.

There are a great number of mistakes also in the amount of postage. All first class matter including letters, post cards, private mailing cards, etc., for the United States is charged at the rate of 2c per half ounce and this includes all post cards, Christmas greeting cards whether enclosed in envelopes or not. The only exception to this is the government postal cards which are printed with 1c postage upon it.

But of interest to patrons of the post office is that greeting cards with printed holiday greetings may be mailed in envelopes, unsealed, for 1½c provided they have no writing except the name of sender and brief greeting such as "Merry Christmas", etc. Such greeting cards go as third-class or printed matter if not sealed, but if sealed they go as first-class mail and 2c must be paid.

Greeting cards in unsealed envelopes for foreign countries where the regular first-class rate is 5c may be sent for 1c.

Declares Crossings Menace To Horses

Council Orders Companies To Try And Remedy Rail Situation

Colonel W. W. Stevenson told members of city council during their meeting at the City building today that the P. R. R. crossing, East Washington street and Sankey street crossing of the P-O, are dangerous to horses. As a result solons adopted Councilman Tyler's motion notifying the companies of the situation.

The colonel claims that horses shoes are caught in the rails and that the horses fall, sometimes with injury to their legs. "What few horses we have we want to save" said the colonel.

Incidentally in discussing horses, Councilman Davies told Mr. Stevenson some horses here are being used when work is abuse—in their old age and crippled condition.

Colonel Stevenson informed Mr. Davies that such horses are not from this city but have been sold from out of town points to local persons who use them but said the society which he represents is and would do everything to stop animals being punished.

Those who live in modern apartments have no room for complaint.

Just Among Us Girls

Bunkroom Need Before Council

Ex-Servicemen Present Request To Council At Session Today

Representatives of the American legion and Veterans of Foreign wars today requested city council, during formal session at the City building, to furnish a sanitary place where ex-service men can wash and sleep while travelling through here, seeking work.

The representatives charged the present "bunkroom" as unfit for human beings, praised Mayor Dunlap for his interest and treatment in humanity and ex-service men and compared treatment of the men in days of war with the treatment accorded them today.

W. H. Clappie, V. of F. W. committeeman said that sometime ago "the attention of ex-service men was called to conditions existing in the bunkroom. We have seen the conditions at night and have kept a check.

"I appeal to council, in the interest of the ex-service men that this condition be relieved. I believe all of us should put our shoulder to the wheel and if we do, we can put it over. All of the patriotic organizations here are of this opinion."

William Fleming, former post commander and the representative of the American legion said that he visits the city police station every evening and the average number of ex-service men to be found nightly in the bunkroom ranges from six to seven.

"The conditions, as described, are true. The condition is not blamed on city council. We are very thankful for what the mayor of New Castle has done for the men" said Fleming who is county detective.

"The average ex-service men does not care to come in during broad daylight. Ex-service men have pride. They do all they can to hide their plight. They are not bums. I would not be afraid to tell any organization what they are doing.

"I am asking council to provide a place because these organizations which are supposed to do it, do not."

"I want to say, gentlemen," said Mayor Dunlap to colleagues 'that Mr. Fleming is not uttering idle talk. He gave money to help these men on Thanksgiving day."

"I made a motion that you appoint a committee to make an investigation and report" said Councilman Tyler, referring to the mayor's statement regarding bunkroom conditions and organizations, weeks ago.

"I think the time has come when we should have a sanitary place. We have maintained a place for years, a place where I would not put a good dog" declared Tyler.

"There is no question about the necessity of such a place" answered the mayor.

"Some men here have said, we should 'drive them out.'

"There has been 150 men to visit this place, study it and converse with the men given lodging.

"I am satisfied that 90 percent of them are not bums and are honest men.

"The cry that they are 'bums' is false, likewise the cry that we will have 600,000 of them here.

"Gentlemen" added the mayor, "only one or two nights ago there were two gentlemen there, one 70 and the other 77."

'I do not think anyone disputes it" said Councilman Burns.

"I suggest that we meet as a committee and start to work on it immediately" declared Councilman Davies.

"Councilman Genkinger and I have sized this situation up," he added.

Councilman Tyler remarked that the city "might get a temporary place."

The mayor said it is a necessity, adding that as soon as cold weather arrives there will not be room in the present abode for men to find space to lay down.

Council decided to accept Davies suggestion to meet immediately, Mayor Dunlap declaring from the chair of council meeting: 'We sure have given the lie to the statement that these men are 'bums'.

DEFENSE IN JERSEY MURDER TRIAL IS NOW BEING HEARD

that Beach was at the murder scene will be discounted, Hedges continued.

Family at Side

Beach's wife, son and daughter-in-law were at his side as the defense got under way today, and Mrs. Lilliendahl occupied a chair in their midst.

"Our defense, on the whole, is based on an alibi," Hedges revealed, adding that he would prove Beach was not in the vicinity of the crime.

Clinging to the "negro thug" theme —the defense of Mrs. Lilliendahl that negroes killed her husband—Charles Phillips, attorney for the widow, then told the jury that witnesses would be produced showing that two negroes were in the vicinity of the crime less than half an hour before the murder.

The balance of Phillips' talk dwelt on the friendly relations that he says existed between the Beaches and the Lilliendahls.

Deputy Collapses

So intense was interest as the first defense witness, Bishop Manuel Ferando of Porto Rico, took the stand, that Daniel Gray, deputy sheriff, collapsed, supposedly from the excitement and the closeness of the courtroom. He was carried out by three deputies who found it necessary to lift his body high over their heads in order to clear the crowds that hemmed the aisles.

Because his daughter is reported at the point of death, the bishop was placed on the stand first, that he might finish and leave. His daughter is the wife of Dr. Lilliendahl's son by a first marriage. His testimony was purely a testimonial to Mrs. Lilliendahl's high character as he knew.

When Jack Thornborrow, originally a witness for the state, who had failed to satisfy the prosecution, was recalled by the defense, Assistant Prosecutor A. Cameron Hinkle seized upon his privilege of cross-examination to force a contradictory admission from him.

Thornborrow testified that he saw Beach on the day of the murder, but Hinkle compelled him to admit that he had once signed a statement declaring that Beach came to him two days after the murder and "tried to make him remember that he had seen him on the day of the crime".

The witness asked permission to strike certain passages from his original statement, which he now says, are incorrect. He was confused under the rapid-fire examination.

Denver Plans Room In Church For Courting

Social Halls Are Urged As Meeting Places For Sweethearts

Minister Sees Atmosphere In House Of Worship As Better Than Elsewhere

(International News Service)

DENVER, Dec. 2.—Social halls and courting booths in Denver's churches may be a thing of the very near future.

Dr. Ira Landrith, citizenship superintendent of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, urged in an address at a local church recently that such booths be installed.

"People get married in churches, so why shouldn't they do their courting there," he asked.

"It is better for a young man to court his sweetheart there than in a dance hall, an automobile or a public park," he said.

Dr. Paul G. Preston, pastor of the Central Christian church here, also gave his assent when the matter was presented to him.

Atmosphere Better

"Certainly it is better for young people to meet in the atmosphere of the church rather than the casual contacts of the outside world," declared Dr. C. F. Stevens of the South Broadway Christian church.

Another pastor gave his approval by stating, "In my judgment every church should have a social hall. This place should be open every night in the week."

Opposition immediately sprung from other members of Denver's pastoral ranks, however. Some explanined that the church is surely the place to get married, but doubted very much if the holy sanctuaries were the proper place for hushed whispers and subdued coos.

Radical Idea

"The idea is a little radical," said Dr. William L. Barrett of the Montview Presbyterian church. He advocates the home as the right place for courtships to take place.

Distinctly opposed, Dr. Arnold Niles of the First Universalist church said, "That is not the purpose of the church. The church is not designed to give baked bean suppers, entertain its members or supervise the social activities of young people. The purpose is to generate spiritual living, and such extraneous activites of young people. The purpose is to generate spiritual living, and such extraneous activities should be kept out."

Other clergy said that the responsibility of sponsoring social activities of young people is too great for the church to assume.

GUESS AGAIN

Peter thought it better not to argue with Rattler. The fellow lost his temper so easily. And he decided to follow Rattler's advice and keep his hand on the magic charm in his pocket. Rattler respected that, it was certain.

There was so much of Rattler that one would have thought it would take some time for him to get about, but in a surprisingly short while he had unwound his long length and wound it up again at Peter's feet. The Boy was not any too well pleased at having the Serpent so close to him, but he closed his hand tightly upon Lizard's tail and the feel of it gave him courage. Then Rattler began to speak.

"Yes, siree! It's a mighty good thing you didn't come around until after I had changed my suit, Boy! I doubt that even your charm would have protected you. Say, were you ever blind?"

"Why, no, Rattler, of course not. And I hope I never shall be," declared the Boy.

Serpent nodded.

"Of course you do, and I hope for your sake you never are. Oh, 'tis a terrible feeling to find yourself in the dark—after having been used to seeing everything about you for rods and then, suddenly, not be able to make out so much as the trunk of a tree; to have to go crawling uncertainly over the ground, bumping into this, sliding over that! It makes me crazy with fear, that it does. Thank goodness, my blindness doesn't last very long, but while shedding season is on I am a very miserable Serpent indeed.

Peter was puzzled.

"I can't understand why just because you change your suit you need to lose your sight," said he.

Rattler gave a scornful hiss.

"No, being nothing but a small Two-Legs, I suppose you wouldn't. I shall have to explain. You have been admiring my eye shield—my plate glass window, as you called it Didn't you guess it was a part of my suit? Well, it is, and when I lose my clothes the window goes along with it!"

Oh, poor old Rattler! So that is why you can't see. You don't dare open your eyes with nothing over to protect them," Peter was all sympathy.

"Guess again," hissed Rattler. "You are all wrong." And the Serpent went off into a fit of hissing that frightened the Boy until he made up his mind that the creature wasn't angry this time, but was merely laughing at him.

"'TIS A TERRIBLE FEELING TO FIND YOURSELF SUDDENLY IN THE DARK," HISSED SERPENT.

Illness And Injuries Cause Army To Lose 1,559,763 Days Time

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. — Disease and injuries caused the loss of 1,559,763 days to the personnel of the army in the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Major-General M. W. Ireland, surgeon-general of the army, published today.

"Of the 132,377 officers and men who were in the army, 4,273 were wholly or partially incapacitated for duty each day in the year, 3,511 from diseases and 762 from external causes," the report states. "Each man (including officers) in the army lost an average of 9.68 days from diseases and 2.10 days from external causes.

Deaths for the year totalled 522, which was 10 more than in 1925, the annual death rate increasing from 3.77 per thousand two years ago to 3.94 last year. The increase was due "to the increase in the number of deaths from pneumonia and influenza during the epidemic of respiratory diseases, which occurred during the first four months of the year."

Suicides numbered 44, an increase of two over the year before and two less than for 1924 and 1923. There were 21 homicides during the year; 36 soldiers died from accidental drowning; automobile accidents caused 29 deaths; and 22 men were killed in airplane and balloon crashes.

Christmas Mail To Cost U. S. $9,000,000

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2. — The United States government will play the role of Santa Claus to the tune of about $9,000,000 this Christmas season, in that it will cost the Government approximately that amount above and beyond ordinary expenses of running the mail service to handle the 1927 Christmas mail.

This figure is based upon compilations of similar additional expenditures for previous year, with due allowance for the usual normal increase.

Last year the Post Office Department disbursed $8,688,215 for additional service to take care of the great volume of Christmas mail that poured into the vast postal machine from every possible source. Most of this amount was expended for salaries of additional employees.

Figures for the additional income resulting from the Christmas mail rush were not announced.

Make Sure All Your Christmas Packages Have Proper Address

On account of improper addresses to Christmas letters, greetings and packages last year the New Castle post office was forced to deliver hundreds of pieces of Christmas to the Dead Letter Office to be destroyed, says Edwin W. Crawford, postmaster at the local office.

Each year at the Christmas season hundreds of letters accumulate at the local post office which cannot be delivered or mailed. After keeping them on hand for about two weeks they are sent to the dead letter office at Washington, D. C., and when opened and clue to the sender or addressee obtained they are destroyed.

At Christmas time not only are there more letters mailed but it seems that most people become more careless than at other times. It is likely that some one in making up the list of friends to whom they wish to send a greeting they fail to possess the proper address of some or else they guess at the address with the hope that it will reach the one for whom it is intended. Or perhaps they say the person is well known and they do not need to be particular about the street and number. Therefore each day now for over a month there will be an average of nearly 50 letters received at the New Castle office that will need to be sent to the dead letter office.

The officials at the office say that the chief cause of letters being undelivered is carelessness in addressing. Very few letters are held up because of illegibility. The acme of carelessness would seem to be the many blanks that are received at the office. A letter is all written and sealed and often stamped and then no address at all on the face of the letter, a perfect blank. Often it is a post card that is posted with the apparent idea of a clerk reading the mind of the writer as to just where they wished it sent. The clerks say that often these cards bear a message of a sick friend or relative or equal important news.

When a letter is mailed without sufficient postage or no stamp at all it is returned to the sender for postage if there is a return address. If no return address is furnished the addressee is notified to furnish postage and the letter will be forwarded.

Thus the post office officials warn the public to be very careful in addressing letters and packages at this season. Write plainly but especially be sure and put all the necessary address on the letter.

Power Trust Is Charged Setting Up Super-Lobby

National Government League Officials Say Lobbyists Swoop Down On Capital

PINCHOT ARRIVES IN LEAGUE INTERESTS

Congressional Progressives Plan To Enact Bill For Lobbyists To File Accounts

By KENNETH CLARK
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—A super-lobby of the power trust has swooped down on Washington "to mould public opinion and control power legislation in the coming session of congress," the National Popular Government League charged today.

The league, which is actively supported by ex-governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, described the power interests' activities in a twelve-page brochure entitled, "Who's Who In The Super-Power Lobby."

"The principal objectives of this super-lobby are to kill the Boulder Canyon bill, deliver Muscle Shoals to the power combine, sidetrack the resolution to investigate the power trust as proposed by Senator Walsh (D) of Montana and to turn over an invaluable power site belonging to the Flathead Indians of Montana to the Montana Power Company without just compensation to its owners," said the league.

"There will be no doubt a half dozen lobbies of the power crowd. The one selected to lead the fight, and which is now in the limelight, is the joint committee of National Utility Associations."

Select Leaders

The joint committee has headquarters in New York and a suite of six offices here, the league said.

The leaders of the joint committee, the league declared, are: George B. Cortelyou, chairman, a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, and now president of the Consolidated Gas Company, of New York.

Philip H. Gadsen, vice chairman, connected with "The United Gas and Improvement Company of Philadelphia, which deals in utilities and, as every Pennsylvanian knows, in politics also.

Stephen B. Davis, director, ex-assistant secretary and solicitor of the commerce department. The league said Davis in 1924 testified before the house irrigation committee "in favor of the Boulder Canyon Dam, a fact which should not be forgotten when he appears against it."

Josiah T. Newcomb, counsel. The league quoted Newcomb as having said last February that "I represent an investment of $7,000,000,000, and we do not propose to let the government enter the power business at Boulder Canyon." The league credited Newcomb with having killed the Boulder Dam bill last session.

Others named were Maj. J. S. D. Richardson, publicity director; John H. Finney, engineer; M. O. Leighton, engineer; Frank Bohn, "one of the star writers"; and John Spargo, writer, who was "British-born and a socialist."

As a step in the fight against the alleged super-lobby, congressional progressives plan to demand enactment of a bill to require lobbyists to file expense accounts at the Capitol, and to deny the privilege of the floor to ex-congressmen who are engaged in lobbying.

Dr. Jesse R. Kellems And Charles Richards To Conduct Services At Christian Church

DR. J. R. KELLEMS

CHARLES RICHARDS

Dr. Jesse R. Kellems with his singer, Charles Richards, will begin a one-week evangelistic campaign at the First Christian church Sunday morning, December 4.

Dr. Kellems is one of the leading evangelistis among the Disciples of Christ. He comes from a family of preachers, his father having been professor of Bible in the University of Oregon, from which place Dr. Kellems graduated, after which he travelled extensively in America and Europe, completing his educational work in the University of Edinboro, Scotland, where he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

He has conducted evangelistic services in some of the largest churches in the greatest cities of the world.

About one year and a half ago a millionaire named Mike Thomas of Dallas, Texas, offered to sponsor an evangelistic campaign among the English speaking white people of South Africa. He made the proposition to Dr. Kellems and Mr. Richards and for the past year and a half they have been in South Africa preaching and establishing churches. The result being that six self-supporting congregations were organized and have called pastors, several of whom were from America.

His experiences in South Africa read like a romance, mingled with adventure.

His great faith has resulted in a constructive work, the possibilities of which can not be described by this generation.

He comes to New Castle with the same virile message that has stirred the multitudes elsewhere.

His singer, Charles Richards, is also a graduate of the University of Oregon and has directed choirs and led choruses and sang solos before multitudes in every section of the world. He is a sweet singer and has a personality that is winning indeed.

This combination can not help but be valuable to every congregation or community in which they work.

During their recent stay in South Africa they were assisted in their work by Mrs. Kellems and Mrs. Richards, both of whom are consecrated Christian workers of the highest caliber.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a county-wide meeting of all Christian churches in Lawrence county in the auditorium of the First Christian church at which time Dr. Kellems will speak on the subject of South Africa.

Many churches from outside the county are expected to be represented at this meeting.

Missionary From Southern Africa At Ministers Meeting

Dr. Jesse R. Kellems, one of the outstanding young evangelists of the Church of Christ will make an address at the bi-monthly meeting of the New Castle Ministerial association Monday morning, December 5 at 10 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Kellems has recently returned from Southern Africa where he with his company has been evangelizing for one year. He expects to return soon to that promising field. Dr. Kellems will speak on some particular phase of his work.

Spend Fortune Seeking Wealth

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Six business men are living in the woods, digging at night and spending their modest fortunes in a search for an elusive fortune of $10,000,000. Buried treasure is the answer.

Smith And Vare Locate Seats In Senate Chamber

By Strange Coincident The Seats Are Those Closest To Door Of Chamber

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Senators-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois, and Wm. S. Vare of Pennsylvania, visited the Senate chamber today and located their seats—which they may not be permitted to occupy.

Smith's seat was found to be the end seat in the last row, and Vare's the end seat in next to the last row. By accident or design they are the closest to the door of all the seats in the chamber.

Medical Society Hears Of Anemia

At the meeting of the Lawrence County Medical Society held last night, the program as previously announced was carried out. The topic for discussion was that of Pernicious Anemia and the discussion was led by Dr. E. Kaplan and Dr. W. A. Womer.

Another matter that came up for considerable and favorable discussion at the meeting, is the proposal of the Red Cross, Metropolitan Insurance company and the city nurse, to cooperate in an effort to furnish nursing care for the sick in this city.

A communication from the Red Cross stated that the society proposes in the immediate future to start furnishing a visiting nurse in the city and county. The physicians of the county were requested in the communication to send all calls for nursing assistance to the Red Cross.

Shenango School Hears Comedian

The children and teachers enjoyed the program very much it is reported by the principal, Clare Book.

On Saturday evening, December 3, at 8:15 o'clock the comedian and humorist will give an entertainment at the school the proceeds of which will be for the school.

Blessed are the peacemakers—they don't have to trouble about unemployment.

Brest And Mehard Are Commended By Training Station Officers

Two New Castle boys, C. L. Brest and W. H. Mehard, who are at present in training at the Electrical School of the United States Navy at Hampton Roads, Va., are making good in more than one way, according to the letter just received from them, in which they enclose a copy of the recent order of the commanding officer for their services at the Radio and Electrical Show at Norfolk.

The order was issued from the Meritorious Mast, over which the commanding officer presides and where commendable services are officially recognized and commended. This is placed on the service record of the men receiving it.

The order received by the local young men follows:

U. S. N. Training Station,

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Pouring of concrete on the boulevard between Woodlawn and the Ambridge-Woodlawn bridge has been finished it is announced by Rinehart Brothers, contractors of East Liverpool, O. The road will be thrown open to traffic about December 10. It is also expected that the new bridge may be open at this time. The approach on the Ambridge end of the bridge was completed some time ago.

It's all right to be true to yourself, but you can do that consistently and yet pay the check at times.

PLAN COUNTY CONVENTION IN BIG CATHEDRAL

Lawrence County Sabbath School Association Looks Ahead To June

The executive committee of the Lawrence County Sabbath School association held its regular monthly meeting Thursday evening at the Y. W. C. A. parlor, with the president, Robert M. Strickler, Jr., presiding.

The first matter to be taken up was the coming Mid-Year Efficiency Conference. The time set for this conference was Thursday, January 19, afternoon session and evening dinner with session to follow. The place of meeting will be the Y. W. C. A.

The resignation of E. L. Guy was read and with very much regret it was accepted by the committee. Mr. Guy has held this position for the past number of years and has always been interested, active and efficient in the work. His successor to be elected was John W. Owens, who is president of the Men's Bible Class association of the county as it was thought well to unite these two organizations which will be to the mutual benefit of both organizations.

The date set for the next county convention was June 7th and the place, the Scottish Rite Cathedral. The place had originally been announced as the First Baptist church as they had graciously tendered their church, but it was thought that this church would not accommodate the attendance which will, in all probability, be record-breaking. The plan is to have the county convention this year of the same calibre as the state convention, and there will also be a large fellowship dinner served at the Cathedral.

THE GREAT "RUSH" THAT FOLLOWED NEWS OF THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD IN "THE PIKES PEAK COUNTRY" (1858) DID NOT BEGIN UNTIL THE SPRING OF 1859. DURING THE WINTER OF 1858-59 AN ARMY OF FORTUNE HUNTERS GATHERED ON THE FRONTIER. THEIR CAMPS STRUNG OUT ALONG THE MISSOURI RIVER, AND WAITED FOR THE HEAVY SNOWS TO MELT.

WITH THE COMING OF SPRING, THE WAITING HORDE SURGED EAGERLY TOWARD THE GOLD FIELDS, 700 MILES AWAY. THE PROSPECTORS CAME ON HORSEBACK, IN WAGONS OR ON FOOT LEADING PACK-MULES OR CARRYING THEIR SUPPLIES IN LIGHT TWO-WHEELED PUSHCARTS.

ALL KINDS OF VEHICLES WERE TO BE SEEN IN THE LONG PROCESSION. THERE WERE TRAINS OF "PRAIRIE SCHOONERS", MOST OF THEM WITH THE SLOGAN "PIKES PEAK OR BUST" PAINTED ON THEIR FLAPPING CANVAS TOPS.

WHEN THE MOUNTAINS WERE REACHED, THERE WAS A WILD SCRAMBLE TO STAKE OUT CLAIMS, AND MANY DISPUTES AROSE OVER THE POSSESSION OF SPOTS THAT SHOWED PROMISE OF YIELDING MUCH GOLD.

Major League Teams To Open 1928 Season Wednesday April 11

Big League Baseball Season To Open And Close Earlier Next Year

Pittsburgh Pirates Scheduled To Open Season In St. Louis

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 2.—The American and National leagues will start their 1928 baseball season Wednesday, April 11, and will close Sept. 30, it was announced here Thursday afternoon when the schedule committees of both major leagues completed their work. The opening and closing dates are somewhat earlier than those of last season.

The opening games follow:

National league—Pittsburgh at St. Louis, Chicago at Cincinnati, Boston at New York and Philadelphia at Brooklyn.

American league—Cleveland at Chicago, St. Louis at Detroit, New York at Philadelphia and Washington at Boston.

The schedule-drafting committees made a new record for speed in fixing the dates. The meeting was described as the most harmonious ever held between the major leagues' schedule-makers. The work was begun Wednesday afternoon.

President John A. Heydler of the National league and Barney Dreyfuss owner of the Pirates, comprised the senior circuit's representatives.

E. S. Barnard, newly elected successor to Ban Johnson, former scar of the American league, acted with William Harridge, secretary of the American league, as the two delegates of their organization.

Mr. Heydler announced the committees decided on a new departure in making the entire schedule public. Under the new arrangement the playing cards will be published early in January. Heretofore they have been held up until February.

Grid Season To End Saturday

Georgia-Georgia Tech Battle For Southern Title At Atlanta Tomorrow

TROJANS BATTLE WASHINGTON U.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
Sports Editor Internat'al News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Anything can happen in football, they say, possibly even a touchback on a safety, and beyond all doubt several things will tomorrow, as the pastime makes a formal but not altogether official exeunt, whatever that may be. Perhaps the University of Georgia, about to conclude what probably has been its greatest season, will find out. Perhaps not. Anyhow, the Bulldogs must beat Georgia Tech at Atlanta within twenty-four hours or that wonderful record will become a grand old ruin. Incidentally, it might be mentioned that a lot of fair football teams have experienced difficulty in beating Tech within twenty four hours.

Three thousand miles away, in Los Angeles to be precise, the boys from Southern California who lost the football game to Notre Dame on either a short or a long count or something or maybe nothing, will meet Washington in a game that was a long time coming but will make up for all lost motion. If any. Just as the Georgia-Georgia Tech meeting will decide the southern conference championship, so will the Washington-U. S. C. affair dispose of the coast conference title.

Tin Mill Teams Battle Tomorrow In Grid Contest

Tin Mill Elevens To Play Benefit Game At Ben Franklin Field

The New Castle Works and Shenango Works football teams will battle here tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Franklin Field. The game is being played as a benefit for the Margaret Henry Home.

The teams have concluded training and are ready for the battle that is sure to ensue when they face each other on the greensward.

The winner of the game will automatically be known as the industrial champions of the city of New Castle.

Wins Eastern Scoring Honors

Myles Lane of Dartmouth is winner of the eastern individual football scoring crown for 1927 by compiling a total of 125 points, said to be the highest ever made. In scoring the 125 points, Lane carried the ball for a touchdown 18 times and kicked 17 goals after touchdown.

Walkers In Sports

By Feg Murray

Walkers have done their bit in the history of the world, and there have been many famous Walkers in sports—not counting sleep-walkers and jay-walkers—and one of the clan, James J. Walker, is now mayor of New York City. "Hizzoner," when in the New York state senate, fathered the present boxing law, and incidentally gave to the Empire state the chance to enjoy Sunday baseball.

Mickey Walker, former world's welterweight champion and the present middleweight king, is the most famous of the athletic Walkers. It seems only a little while ago that they were talking of matching Mickey with Benny Leonard, then lightweight titleholder, and now he is knocking out ex-light-heavyweight champion Mike McTigue and making threatening gestures at Gene Tunney!

You have, of course, heard of the Walker cup, donated by George Herbert Walker, and competed for by the very best "gentleman amateur" in England and America. Curt Walker is an outfielder for the Cincinnati Reds, and two or three years ago the Giants tried out an outfielder named Frank Walker, who was labelled "baseball's champion business man" because he had sold himself to John McGraw and pocketed the purchase price.

Cyril Walker jumped into fame with a bang in 1924 by winning the national open golf championship from a Mr. Jones, of whom you've heard. But Cyril fell by the wayside the following year. Then there is "Goat" Walker, shown above, and Archie Walker, a welterweight contender.

Feg Murray Says—

TIN MILLS CLASH HERE SATURDAY AT FRANKLIN FIELD

New Castle Works and the Shenango Works are all set for their battle Saturday at the Ben Franklin Stadium at 2:30.

With the industrial championship of the city at stake the teams are working hard for the encounter. The weather conditions have not dampened the spirits of either team.

Coach Evans of the New Castle Works is depending upon an aerial attack to defeat the Shenango team. The Colored Stars is the only team to stop the passing game of the tin wallopers.

With a backfield averaging 180 pounds, Coach Arrow of the Shenango Works expects no difficulty in battering the New Castle line.

The New Castle Works line will be much lighter than expected, as they will be without the services of Frank Ritz, 180-pound tackle.

The line-up:

N. C. Works		Shen. Works
Cowmeadow	L. E.	Dudek
Pink	L. T.	Beardo
Bagshaw	L. G.	Ward
Fletcher	C.	Douds
Lowery	R. G.	Fowler
White	R. T.	Jones
Evans	R. E.	Brooks
Neyman	Q.	McCracken
Henry	L. H.	Kelly

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

By ED. FRITZ

When the ball soars through center field next spring there will be many familiar faces to major league fans missing from the big show. Walter Johnson, Jacques Fournier, Zach Wheat, Dutch Reuther and Bob Shawkey will be missing and at this time it is not known whether Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker will be uniformed. Time waits for no man and apparently has dulled their eyes, slowed their legs and they'll be no more in the fast company. Johnson will manage Newark, Cobb may help the Athletics while Tris may help Bucky Harris.

Dr. J. F. Donahoo of Washington, Pa., has been named official physician for the all-eastern grid team that will play a charity game with an all-west team at San Francisco December 26, according to Andy Kerr. It will be Donahoo's second trip to the coast as a football team physician, having accompanied the Wash-Jeff eleven to Pasadena in 1922.

Charley Harvey and Frank Churchill, explorers of the foreign cauliflower crop, apparently have things to themselves and have made a success of their business. Harvey brought to this country such fighters as Owen Moran, Jem Driscoll, Matt Wells, a fine trio, and more lately, Tom Heeney. Churchill introduced the great little Pancho Villa, who died recently, and other Filipinos who are fighting regularly in the states. However, Bob Levy hopes to get in on the exploration and has imported an entire aggregation including Petit Biquet, flyweight; Hubert Gilles, featherweight; Joe Class and Francois Sybille, lightweights, and Charles Deemet, Jr., welterweight, all from France.

New Castle High Plays Beaver Falls In Benefit Game

New Castle high football team will conclude their 1927 gridiron season at Reeves stadium, Beaver Falls Saturday afternoon when they tackle Beaver Falls High in a post-season contest. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

The game is being played as a benefit for the blind of Beaver valley and is being sponsored by the Lions club of Beaver Falls. F. W. Gowell president of the Beaver Falls Lions club was instrumental in arranging for the game.

Both schools have obtained the official sanction of advisory boards for the playing of the game, it is understood. Geneva college is aiding the movement by donating the use of the college stadium for the battle and also any facilities that might be needed by the teams. The New Castle team will use the Geneva college dressing room.

The New Castle high team wound up their practice sessions on Thursday afternoon with a slight signal drill.

It will be the final game of the year for the New Castle High team and many of the boys will don the mole skins for the last time, included in this group is Captain "Tippy" Richards, Earl Turk, Glenn Thomas, Robert Sherer, Shultz and Sage.

Coach Bridenbaugh intimated today that he would use his regular starting lineup for the game with Ostrosky, Di Carbo, Mooney, Thomas, Cuba, Alexander, Craft, Reider, Captain Richards, Turk and Harper getting the call for the starting positions.

The New Castle team will leave here about 12 o'clock Saturday in busses for the valley.

Beaver Falls is said to have a fast forward passing attach Canich to Gardia that will cause the locals some trouble in their battle. It has been the work of this pair this season that was instrumental in the success of the gridiron activities.

La Guardia Would Limit Tax Cut To Hundred Million

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON Dec. 2.—Charging that demands for passage of a huge tax reduction bill are designed to head off adequate appropriations for flood relief and other purposes, Rep. Laguardia (R.) of New York today proposed that $100,000,000 be the limit on the tax cut.

Both Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's $225,000,000 limit and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce's $400,000,000 cut were denounced by him as extravagant.

RIVER VERY HIGH

The Mahoning river is very high. Down along the Willow Grove road there is water on both sides of the road nearly up to the highway. The flats along the road are filled with water, and it appears when riding on the highway that you are on just an elevated track between two bodies of water. Some places the water is just a couple of feet from the road.

Gormley of Cherry street. Upon examining the snake they found it was a black snake and was about four and a half feet in length.

SORDS POINTS
Still Far Away, But Closer

By JACK SORDS

If boisterous Benito Mussolini, dictator of Italy, read American sport pages he would be having the laugh of his life.

Benito is extremely fond of everything Italian (this includes himself) and naturally when an offspring of the land of oranges and organ grinders makes good, Benito must be happy.

But Benito's snicker would be caused cheifly by the sight of a husky Italian heavyweight forcing the American sports writers to pull in their ears and put their typewriters in reverse.

The heavyweight is Roberto Roberti, a young man of terrific strength who can break brickbats like buttered toast between his gigantic hands. Roberti came here to America some time ago and did a bit of fighting. His showing was nothing to cable the Duce about.

Roberti's chances to get anywhere in the heavyweight circles seemed as substantial as a plate of melted spumoni. He might be the Lion of the Pyrenees, but he was a lamb in this locality. At least so said the sports writers.

Came a battle with Lou Barba. Roberti managed to get a draw and from that moment on his fortunes changed. In eight fights his record is now six knockouts. The sports writers are getting hep.

In two recent maulings Roberti rocked Ralph Smith to dreamland and Tut Jackson into insensibility in just seven rounds for the two. That's three and a half rounds per fight.

If that doesn't look good, just recollect how long it took that rising Black Menace, George Godfrey, to put these two gentlemen away. Smith lasted nine rounds against George and Jackson five. It took Godfrey twice as long to remove them as it did Roberti.

Roberti is still a long way from Tunney, but at that he's a great deal closer to a big match than he was when he stepped foot on these shores, which is saying a great deal more for him than can be said about most fistic importations of this season.

A good match would be a Roberti-Godfrey battle. However, Roberti is said to draw the line at meeting the big smoke. He wants none of him—at least, not right now. Next summer, maybe yes. But now—nossir! Which stamps Mr. Roberti as a very smart young man. For Giant George is a tough egg to crack for any young heavyweight with rising ambitions.

Crazed By Drink Man Attempts To Kill His Family

Entire Family Of Eight Jeopardized By Moonshine Crazed Husband

(International News Service)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Dec. 2.—Crazed by moonshine, according to police, Joe Ferko tried to wipe out his entire family of eight today, but was captured by police after a terrific struggle.

Early this morning, according to police, Ferko seized two revolvers and opened fire on his wife and children He fired 24 shots, but Mrs. Ferko and her oldest son managed to reach four of the smaller children and flee with them to a rear shanty.

They could not get the other two children, whose fate remained unknown until police captured Ferko. Their father held them prisoners for an hour and a half as he continued to fire through doors at the slightest movement. One daughter was injured in a fall, trying to reach the outside building.

Police finally surrounded the house and surprised Ferko in the kitchen, knocking both revolvers from his hands. They took him to Ashley, where he will be arraigned tonight on charges of shooting with intent to kill and carrying concealed weapons.

N. Y. STOCKS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Sharp rallies in the motor and specialty stocks at the beginning of trading today, in the face of a new $9,500,000 increase in brokers' loans, signalized the complete dominance of bullish forces in the stock market. Within the first half hour Montgomery Ward recovered all of its 5 point reaction sustained near the day's close, Houston Oil jumped 6 points to 165½, Industrial Alcohol rose 7 to 96: Green Canaea pushed forward spectacularly to 102 and recoveries were made by General Motors, U. S. Steel, Collins and Aikman, Nash Motors and American Smelting.

In view of the wide open swing in prices over the past week, Wall street looked for a larger increase in the weekly tabulation of brokers' loans than the $29,500,000 reported by the Federal Reserve Board. It was estimated that the December disbursements for interest and dividends would top $500,000,000, the largest in the history for the period, creating an enormous fund for re-investment in stocks and bonds. Copper prices finally reached the 14 cent level with 14¼ cents quoted for export metal.

Tells How To Feed Poultry In Winter

County Agent Explains Use Of Different Mash And Green Feeds

"Modern winter feeding of poultry requires a good laying mash, liberal feeding of scratch grain and a variety of green feeds," says County Agent H. R. McCulloch. "The laying mash is easy to obtain with many commercial mixtures on the market, and the large number of mashes available. With the scratch grain, more attention should be given to the quality of the grain used. In most cases equal parts of yellow corn and wheat give the best results. The liberal use of green feeds is most sadly neglected in the feeding of most farm flocks."

Last winter extension poultrymen of the Pennsylvania State College found that most of the cases of roup in laying were caused by improper feeding. In nearly every case a change in feeding practices corrected, the trouble in a short time. The usual change was to add a variety of green feeds to the ration.

Use of alfalfa leaf meal in the laying mash is becoming quite common. Leaf meal is an excellent feed and can be used in place of half the oats in a mash to a good advantage, the county agent declares. However, this feed does not answer the green feed question. Good substitutes for grass are found to be cabbage, mangel beets, apples, potatoes, carrots or germinated oats.

Alfalfa, clover or soy bean hay, if fed in a wire rack, will give just as good results as adding alfalfa meal to the mash. But by all means give the birds some succulent feed in addition to the clover, Mr. McCulloch urges. If it is impossible to get a succulent feed, cod liver oil should be added to the moist mash about once a week.

Mexican Rebels Attack Towns

(International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2—"Liberator" rebels attacked the town of Zapopan, near Guadalajara, raiding the Seattle residence colony, owned by Americans, said a dispatch from Guadalajara today. The rebels captured a machine gun and a small cannon from the Federals, but were later driven out.

Rebels raided the mining town of Ameca, state of Jalisco, burning government schools and public archives and seizing arms and provisions.

An attack by rebels at Zamora, Michoacan, was repulsed, both Federals and rebels sustaining casualties.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

ROAMING AROUND, Dec. 2.—Here is a story about Christy Flannagan, Notre Dame's football Mercury, that is worth relating at this late date. For the reason that Christy's name will be on everybody's lips for some time as a real star.

Christy hails from down Beaumont, Texas, way. His hather is in the stevedore business. The firm name is Christy Flannagan & Son. And therein lies a tale of fatherly enthusiasm.

The elder Flannagan has followed the football career of his son from September 1 to New Years—and the Notre Dame team from New York to Los Angeles ever since Christy became its star.

Last fall, Flannagan, Sr., then sole owner of "Christy Flannagan, Stevedores," left his business flat over the week-end and journeyed east to see Notre Dame play the Army. You'll recall that Flannagan was the outstanding star of that game—that a run of something like 68 yards by Christy, Jr., was the high spot of the game, won it for Notre Dame.

That run may have been a thriller to other folk, but there was only one man in the stands who got the kick out of it that Christy, Sr., did. His fatherly pride almost burst.

And the first thing he did when he returned to Beaumont was to change the name of his firm to "Christy Flannagan & Son."

This makes Christy, Sr.'s run unique in football annals. It is probably the only one in football history that not only resulted in a victory for a team, but hurled the ball carrier into half ownership of a going concern.

Grid fans around Beaumont—which includes those of Port Arthur and other points, are still debating and may never decide which is the greater football player—Flannagan or Keener Cagle, Army star.

Cagle hails from Merryvill, La., across the Sabine river from Beaumont. He attended Merryville high school and then Southwestern Institute. He was more famous as a basketball player than a grid player while in high school, but blossomed out into a brilliant pigskin carrier at the institute.

And speaking of Beaumont, Ted Lyons, pitching ace of the Chicago White Sox, hails from Vinton, Texas, close by, and is home these days. His fellow townsmen have done everything they could in the way of honoring and feting him. The last word was said the other day, though, when he was made a Rotarian. The club introduced a baseball classification to take care of him. And before the winter is over he'll be serving on the committee for Belgian relief and whatnot.

All of which causes Orange, Texas, a few miles away, to laugh. One of the early moves of Vinton folk was to organize a ball game so that Lyons could show his stuff to the home town folk. A group of stars of considerable and lesser light were collected to play behind him, and the team at Orange invited to furnish the opposition.

The Orange team slammed Ted's shoots all over the lot.

It is generally believed that one of the first activities of E. S. Barnard, newly named president of the American league, will be against the "purchase price" evil now existing in the major leagues to a greater or lesser degree.

Some ow the major league clubs have increased their profits at the gate, momentarily at least, in the past by announcing the purchase of young players at fabulous figures.

The players have actually been purchased, but a checkup on the details has shown that only a small down payment was made—the payment of the major portion of the sum named to be made on the final acceptance of the player. Failing to deliver, the player is turned back—after interest in his acquisition has died down.

Just what action Barnard will suggest is unknown.

The evil not only tends to discredit all legitimate purchases as far as actual price is concerned but works a hardship on the player involved. He is branded as a "bust" if he fails to deliver in brilliant fashion over night. He perhaps draws some razzing. His confidence is hit.

Not only that but these "conditional purchases" have prevented other clubs with a sincere desire to use the young man from acquiring him.

The evil will be difficult to check, however. The so-called "gentlemen's agreement" is an exclusive affair. It's hard to trace the money.

Five Injured In Auto Collision

(International News Service)

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Dec. 2.—Four girls and a man were injured when a truck collided with a small coupe in a snowstorm between Mifflin and Lewistown today.

The girls, Anna, 19, and Mary Jacobs, 22, and Lydia, 20, and Martha Sheetz, 22, were riding in the coupe to this city where they are employed in the silk mills.

Their coupe and a truck driven by George Fellows, 24, of Lewistown, came together in what is known as The Narrows. The coupe plunged over a 20-foot embankment into an old canal bed.

The girls, suffering from shock and lacerations, and the truck driver were taken to the local hospital.
